Learning tolerance AHS hosts famous minority athletes

By Lisa Boudreau

By the year 2000, one-third of the American population will be minorities, Andover High School Principal Tim Thomas told a student assembly Monday.

Andover High School students heard three professional athletes talk about racism and discrimination as part of a forum called Project Teamwork, Monday at the Collins Center. The forum is sponsored by Northeastern University and Reebok.

Mr. Thomas told the students that AHS

Guns worry neighbors Sportsman Club members are firing machine guns

By Lisa Boudreau

Neighbors of the Andover Sportsman Club's shooting range in Harold Parker State Forest are concerned because some club members are firing machine guns and semi-automatic weapons. The neighbors and members of the Forest Advisory Committee met Wednesday evening, Jan. 15, after the Townsmen deadline to discuss their concerns with Sportsman Club officials at the club's quarters off Salem Street on the North Andover side of Harold Parker State Forest.

Police begin foot patrol in square

By Don Staruk

The police department this week began early morning foot patrols in Elm Square beginning at 4 a.m. and ending at 9 a.m.

The duty requires the patrolman assigned to the downtown beat to change into heavy clothing, leave the patrol car at the station and walk the square, checking doors from 4 to 7 a.m.

From 7 to 9 a.m., the officer assists school children crossing Elm Square and watches for traffic violations, according to Chief James Johnson.

"There will also be a man in the square during the day now," Chief Johnson said.

Several patrolmen are upset with the new beat and at least one, who asked not to be identified, said patrolmen consider the new assignment retaliation by Chief Johnson for patrolmen speaking to the press recently about contract negotiations and other activities in the department. Patrolmen have been working without a contract for more than two and a half years.

Chief Johnson said the foot patrol is not new and that it was in practice five or six years ago. He also said there is always a patrolman assigned to Elm Square during those hours anyway.

The discussion will be "A retrospective look at my two years in China as American ambassador."

The talk is at 7 p.m. in Cochran Chapel, on Chapel Avenue, and is open to the public.

Juiceman drinks to good health

By Melissa DeMeo

Grapefruits, we're told, aren't just for breakfast anymore. Jay Kordich couldn't agree more. To him, freshly juiced pineapples with a little grapefruit thrown in will relieve stiff and swollen joints.

And fresh cranberry juice will keep the flu at bay. Stomach ulcers? Cabbage will cure them, Mr. Kordich says.

The "Juiceman" is bringing his crusade - and his own juicemaking machine - to Andover Saturday in a seminar at the Rolling Green Host Hotel.

"We sell the Juiceman juicer - it's the best in the world - but that takes a back seat to education," Mr. Kordich says. "We try to teach people what the body requires to stay youthful and disease-free."

And that all depends on what you put in your mouth. "Whatever you eat - whether it's a piece of cheesecake, a Dunkin' Donut, a big, juicy steak - as soon as you chew and swallow it, you have no control over it; the body takes over.

"All the body is doing is juicing it."

Why not cut out the middleman, suggests Mr. Kordich, who says the sooner your body processes food the better.

"Everybody says, 'I'm eating a beautiful filet mignon,' but what comes out of a steak? It's not carrot juice; it's not apple juice. It's blood - rotten, rancid, stench-filled blood that could cause colo-rectal cancer," he says. "But don't put that in the paper: It's too gross."

There's no red meat on Mr. Kordich's table; in fact, there's no meat at all. He spurns fish and poultry, especially chicken. "If I had to have fowl, I'd choose turkey. Turkeys have little incidence of cancer."

He drinks at least a quart of fresh juice a day and munches on raw fruits and vegetables in small, but frequent, amounts, never in traditional, large meals. "I'm like a throwback to ancient man," he says.

And that means doing away with modern-day devices such as stoves. Mr. Kordich prefers his food uncooked.

"When you cook food, it takes 48 hours and longer to digest and evacuate the residue and waste and ash," he said. "Raw food takes 17 hours; it is very quickly processed.

"Cooked food is dead, and only life begets life."

His wife and young sons - ages 7 and 5 - follow the same menu. Mr. Kordich has two other sons from a previous marriage, including a 50-year-old who, at 240 pounds, "is a prime candidate for a heart attack....But he won't listen to me."

The elder Kordich, who will turn 70 in August, has been proselytizing around the country since 1948. Then a med student at the University of Southern California, he'd just signed a contract with the Green Bay Packers when he found out that he had more than a groin pull. He was diagnosed with cancer of the bladder, and the prognosis was not good.

"They said, 'It's inoperable.' I said, 'I'm not going to have radium or mercury treatments.' They didn't have chemotherapy back then," Mr. Kordich says.

He remembered reading in his medical text books about a German doctor who proposed an intensive treatment that included frequent glasses of fresh juice. Dr. Max Gerson was practicing in New York, and Mr. Kordich went to him, saying, "I can't pay you right now. I'll pay you later, if I live."

Under Dr. Gerson's care, Mr. Kordich began a regimen of carrot-apple juice every hour, 13 hours a day, for two years.

He says it worked. Mr. Kordich has been free of cancer for 40 years.

"Nobody knows about these juices. How come nobody tells us these things?"

How come?

"How much money is the medical profes-

NEWS IN BRIEF

Town census was mailed

The town census has been mailed to homes in Andover.

Anyone leaving town for an extended period of time should contact the town clerk's office so they are not dropped from the census rolls.

Increasingly the town clerk's office is receiving requests for residency verification, especially to prove residency for public school admittance.

The only legal way the town clerk of any municipality can verify residency is through the town census.

Also the law is explicit in that all registered voters must verify residency each year to remain on the voter rolls. There are two primaries, a town election and a presidential election in 1992.

A person's 1992 census form will indicate if he/she is a registered voter in the town.

Postmaster sent out of town

By Don Staruk

Andover postmaster Tony Mendoza was back in town last week on a short break from his special assignment in Puerto Rico.

Mr. Mendoza, postmaster in Andover since 1984, was chosen last fall to be part of a special Caribbean Service Improvement Team. He is assigned to San Juan, Puerto Rico, where he was assistant-postmaster before he came to Andover.

"Our main goal is to improve the quality of service," Mr. Mendoza said.

Mr. Mendoza has been out of his Andover office since Sept. 16, first for two months on a marketing assignment at regional headquarters in Woburn, then in Puerto Rico.

William Farrow, director of field operations at the regional office, is officer in charge at Andover in Mr. Mendoza's absence.

The postal service tries to get next-day delivery for 95 percent of first-class mail within each state, and wants to do the same in Puerto Rico. Private companies hired by the postal service to monitor service found the Caribbean was the lowest area in terms of customer service, Mr. Mendoza said.

Prior to the Improvement Team's arrival, delivery of first-class mail could take five to 10 days or even longer on the island of Puerto Rico, according to Mr. Mendoza. Only 40 percent made it overnight. By Dec. 31, more than 97 percent of first-class mail was delivered the next day.

"This team has done great," Mr. Mendoza said.

Now the team will work on improving third-class mail service, then go into the field to find ways to make route delivery more efficient. The work has not been easy, and Mr. Mendoza said he's been working 10-to-12-hour days, just like he did when he first came to Andover.

Mr. Mendoza was in town last week to make a marketing and management presentation to postal service division managers. A good postmaster has to be innovative and creative, and get involved with the residents of the community, Mr. Mendoza said.

"Not only are they your customers, they are your friends," he said.

Mr. Mendoza has definite plans to return to his job in Andover, but probably not until he spends another four to six months in Puerto Rico. He missed putting his usual seasonal ad in the Townsmen this year wishing his customers well, and he wants Andover residents to know he hasn't forsaken them.

"I just want to let the customers know that I do miss them. I miss the community," Mr. Mendoza said. "I love Andover."

But for now he is needed in the Caribbean to implement many of the same things he has already implemented here in Andover.

Meanwhile his wife, Zoraida, daughter, Glorivee, a student at the University of Massachusetts-Lowell, and son, Anthony, a junior at Andover High School, stay behind in the cold New England winter. Mr. Mendoza was unsympathetic as he glanced out the window at the snow falling in Andover last Thursday afternoon, the day before he was to fly back to San Juan.

"While you're shoveling snow, I'll be shoveling sand," he joked.

Coon named to energy group

State Rep. Gary Coon, R-Andover, has been appointed to the Legislature's new subcommittee on alternative energy.

The subcommittee will explore ways alternative energy sources can be utilized. Examples of such alternatives are biomass, which utilizes renewable resources to produce energy, solar and wind technologies, and substitute fuel sources.

Early this year, each of these areas will be the focus of round table discussions that will include experts in energy use, according to Mr. Coon.

The three-member subcommittee already met last week with a representative from a company that builds and researches wind farms, which are fields of windmills, in California.

"I guess they're looking of doing something like that in this part of the country," Mr. Coon said Monday.

Neighbors worry about guns

"What concerns me are the members with the machine guns going to and from the club," said Andrea Cox, 363 Salem St.

"Hopefully, they are going to go right to the club, and hopefully, these are all nice, sane people, but let's be honest, there are a lot of nuts out there," she said.

Mrs. Cox said she's never had an incident with the gun club, but she's worried nonetheless. Another area of concern she hopes Wednesday's meeting will address is the hunters who become lost and carry their guns onto private property that abuts the hunting grounds.

Patricia and Earl Thornton, 140 Jenkins Road, members of the Advisory Committee, said they are worried about the possibilities for abuse if members of the Sportsman Club come and go freely with machine guns and semi-automatic weapons.

Peggy Keck, 52 Harold Parker Road, chairwoman of the Advisory Committee, said representatives of area police departments and possibly one from the state police and officials from the Sportsman Club would be at the Wednesday meeting.

Two members of the club contacted by the Townsmen declined to be interviewed on the record. The two men are on opposing sides of machine-gun use at the indoor and outdoor shooting ranges. Calls to Sportsman Club officials were not returned.

Andover Police Chief James Johnson and North Andover Chief Richard Stanley both said they had not received any complaints regarding the Sportsman Club. According to both chiefs, if members of the club are properly licensed to own machine guns then they are within their rights to discharge the guns on a licensed range.

"I've been a police officer here for 15 years and I haven't heard about any accidents related to the Sportsman Club in Harold Parker. They are a very safety-minded organization," said Chief Stanley.

"The words 'machine gun' horrify a lot of people, but semi-automatic weapons can be fired almost as rapidly as fully automatic and they make the same amount of noise," he said.

Michael Yacino, executive director of the Gun Owners Action League in Southboro, said the difference between the two is that a machine gun will continue to fire as long as the weapon's trigger is depressed and a semi-automatic will fire a round of two to four bullets with each depression of the trigger. Both can fire the same caliber bullets, he said.

Officials say there is no state agency with authority over shooting ranges. Mr. Yacino said each town has different zoning regulations and bylaws concerning discharge of firearms. In most cases, he said, gun clubs and shooting ranges pre-exist bylaws and are grandfathered in as allowable uses on the land.

GUIDELINES FOR HOUSEHUNTERS

Finding the perfect house for your family is just the first step toward moving you into a new home. The second step is negotiating the sales agreement with the sellers—both the price and the terms.

To find out if the asking price is in line with the neighborhood, you can ask the Realtor to provide you with the "comparables"—selling prices for similar homes located nearby. The agent can also tell you how these houses may differ from the one you're considering buying. Use this information to help decide whether a particular property is a good value. If the price seems too high, perhaps the sellers are willing to negotiate. The Realtor can't tell you what to offer or what the sellers will accept—the sellers probably won't know what they'll accept until they are presented with a written offer—but the information provided can help you decide how much you want to pay.

For solid advice on buying or selling real estate consult the professionals at Century 21 Minuteman Realty. Please call us at 475-1243, or stop by our office at 2 Elm Square.

Main Street Gulf sold

By Don Staruk

Bill Tynan, owner of Andover Gulf Service at 65 Main St., sold his business last week after operating the gasoline station in downtown Andover for 20 years.

Mr. Tynan, 56, of 1 Longwood Drive, said Monday he wanted a change of scenery and to play more music.

"I'm going to get something a little easier," he said.

Mr. Tynan said he has always played Irish music for nursing homes and parties. "Now I plan to do a little more of it," he said.

He does not have plans to leave Andover and Mr. Tynan said he will probably be around the station to help with transition.

Houssein Damergi and his wife, Renee Loayza, of Post Office Avenue, bought the station. The couple recently moved here from Boston to be near the business. Mr. Damergi ran a service station in Newton for seven years.

The business will remain a Gulf station. Gulf Oil owns the building and the real estate, Mr. Damergi said.

Mr. Damergi will offer the same mechanic services and Mr. Tynan said he hopes long-time customers will continue to patronize the station.

Dennis Deschamp, the mechanic for the last 13 years, knows all the customers and will stay on.

The station will operate from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m., seven days a week, with full mechanic service during regular business hours, and light mechanic service, for oil changes and other minor services, available the rest of the time.

The gas prices are going to go down, according to Mr. Damergi. He said Gulf has promised prices will go down in about two weeks, and that even if they don't, he will lower the prices.

The station will continue to service foreign and domestic autos, and Mr. Damergi said he specializes in Mercedes, Porsche and BMWs.

"We can do anything for a customer," Mr. Damergi said.

Mr. Damergi hopes to add diagnostic equipment so he can have an inspection station by this summer.

Eddy Chlebowski, of Lawrence, worked with Mr. Tynan at the station for 13 years. Now retired, Mr. Chlebowski came by the station on Tuesday to have his photo taken with the employees.

Mr. Tynan said his sons, Sean and Keith, also worked at the station while growing up and going to school in Andover.

Steven Boush made area manager

Steven R. Boush, son of Robert and Janet Boush of 86 Red Spring Road, has been promoted to the position of area manager for Bisco Industries Inc.

The firm, 18 years old, distributes specialty fasteners and electronic components.

Mr. Boush, a graduate of North Adams State College, will oversee the operations of four of Bisco's eight national sales divisions, including those in San Jose and Sacramento, Calif.; Arlington, Texas; and Woburn. Mr. Boush has been employed with Bisco since 1988 and was previously the sales manager and general manager of the Woburn office.

Mr. Boush is a 1984 graduate of Andover High School. He is currently building a home with his wife, Debbie, in Walpole.

Pontiac Division of General Motors Corporation has recognized John A. Mr. Mercier lives at 6 David Drive with his wife, Linda, and four children.

At Masters Program ceremonies held recently at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, Mr. Mercier was honored by Pontiac General Manager J.G. Middlebrook and General Sales and Service Manager E.M. Schlesinger.

"Pace Pontiac has achieved outstanding performance in the two most important aspects of the auto business - customer satisfaction and overall dealership management," noted Mr. Middlebrook at the 20th annual

John A. Mercier

Pontiac Master Dealers Conference.

"Since its inception in 1970, the competition between our dealers has increased annually for entry into the Masters Program," noted Mr. Schlesinger. "The 340 dealers selected this year are the cream of the crop representing the top 11 percent of Pontiac's approximately 3,000 dealers."

"Putting quality on the road is Pontiac's goal," said Mr. Middlebrook. "To meet that objective, it begins by designing and building the product correctly. To complete the chain, you need excellent retail outlets to service your customers, and Pace Pontiac has met that challenge."

James M. Batten of 5 Cardinal Lane has been accepted into membership in the National Association of Enrolled Agents (NAEA). Mr. Batten, who successfully completed all four parts of the IRS Special Enrollment Examination on his first attempt, joins more than 6,500 other enrolled agents as a member of NAEA.

The two-day examination is given once each year and only 25-30 percent of exam candidates pass, with very few passing all four parts on their first attempt.

Enrolled agents are granted the right to practice before the IRS at all administrative levels. This includes all matters connected with presentation to the IRS relating to clients' rights, privileges and liabilities under laws or regulations administered by the IRS.

Mr. Batten will maintain his credentials as a taxpayers' representative by completing a minimum of 30 hours of continuing professional education as established by NAEA. He has been practicing as a tax preparer for 27 years in the Merrimack Valley area.

Phillips lays off 11 maintenance staff

By Lisa Boudreau

Phillips Academy laid off 11 full-time workers last Friday. The 11 plumbers, painters, carpenters and electricians, all employees of the school's physical plant department, were given two weeks' pay in lieu of notice, said Neil Cullen, PA's chief financial officer.

"We want to emphasize that this is not a sign that we intend to lay off other workers," he said. "This is the only work-force reduction we anticipate."

The school borrowed $12 million in the summer of 1989 to begin three years of major maintenance projects, such as the renovations of both McKenney and George Washington halls, which had been postponed for several years.

"Those projects have kept people on longer than they ordinarily would have," said Beverly Henderson, the school's public information director.

But with June comes the end of the three-year extension, and the projects are almost done.

"We've had to consolidate our physical plant staff in order to live within our budget," Mr. Cullen said.

He said the school had hoped to "smooth" the process by building a reserve fund to continue work on other projects, but due to the economy, PA has had to tighten its budget and won't be able to do so.

Neil Cullen,
chief financial officer

'This is the only work-force reduction we anticipate.'

Before Friday's cuts there were approximately 100 full-time employees in the PA physical plant, Mr. Cullen said.

Although Phillips does not intend to lay off more workers, Mr. Cullen said as positions become vacant, the academy will look very closely at whether or not it will fill them.

Hotline gives financial advice

Massachusetts Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators and Pioneer Financial Cooperative Bank are co-sponsoring the 15th annual Financial Aid Hotline. This toll-free service has been established as a source for parents and students to obtain information on completing the Financial Aid Form.

The hotline is in operation through Feb. 6 Monday through Thursday from 5:30 to 9 p.m. The toll-free number is (800) 442-1171.

Experts in the financial aid industry have volunteered their time to staff the hotline.

Over the years, the Financial Aid Hotline has provided thousands of families with information on the Financial Aid Form, and volunteers have answered many questions on eligibility requirements.

A Financial Aid Form must be submitted in order to be considered for state and federal financial aid available for undergraduate and graduate students.

In conjunction with the hotline, free walk-in financial aid clinics are being offered Saturday, Feb. 1, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., to give students and their families the opportunity to meet with financial aid administrators and receive individual assistance with their aid forms.

Conversations will be kept confidential, and those attending are urged to bring their Financial Aid Forms, 1991 tax forms, W-2s or other income information and asset information such as bank statements.

A free clinic will be held at Wentworth Institute of Technology, 550 Huntington Ave., Boston. Other clinics will be held in Lynn, Chicopee, Worcester, North Dartmouth and Pittsfield.

"One of MASFAA's principal goals is to ensure that accurate and timely facts about financial aid are available to families and students who are interested in pursuing a post-secondary education," said Carol Rubel, director of financial aid at Wentworth Institute of Technology and MASFAA's hotline coordinator.

"By providing access to financial assistance information, we hope to promote access to higher education."

MASFAA is a non-profit group of financial aid professionals from colleges and universities who want to increase the knowledge of aid procedures.

Mixed signals

AHS sports new satellite dish

By Lisa Boudreau

Andover public school officials have found a cost-effective way to bring world-renowned scientists, teachers, ballet dancers, opera singers and professional athletes into the town's classrooms on a daily basis. They're beamed in by satellite.

Beginning this week students will have an opportunity to view dozens of programs produced by the Massachusetts Corporation of Education Technologies in Cambridge that are linked to a satellite and beamed down to participating school systems such as Andover, said Ken Kwajewski, director of technology and media.

The whole "Learn Pike" package, including the satellite receiving dish, a 27-inch color TV, VCR, cordless telephone to contact the Cambridge studio and the rights to rebroadcast the shows, cost $3,000. Next year it will cost $1,000 for the rights.

The concept provides a cost-effective way to expose schools to the best teachers, ideas and educational resources, Mr. Kwajewski said.

"The money is coming from funds from the two middle schools, some money in my technology budget and some funds in (the assistant superintendent's) staff development budget," he said.

The telephone hookup and computer network allows Andover teachers and students to interact with Learn Pike and ask the people in the Cambridge studio questions during the live broadcasts, Mr. Kwajewski said.

Teachers can also send to Learn Pike for the literature and workbooks that accompany each program.

"It isn't just a lecture-listen series," he added.

Digital donates computer equipment

Andover schools have received a $30,000 equipment grant from Digital Equipment Corp. The equipment grant includes 10 DECstation systems, which will help equip an existing IBM computer lab. The DECstation is IBM compatible.

The equipment will be used to help run existing software programs, said Ken Kwajewski, director of technology and media for the Andover school system.

Andover schools are among 17 systems across the state to receive DECstation computer systems through Digital's corporate contributions program. Valued at nearly $1 million, the equipment grant program was designed to provide access to state-of-the-art technology to schools that would otherwise not be able to afford it.

Exchange program looking for hosts

ASSE International Student Exchange Programs is seeking local families to host boys and girls from Scandinavia, France, Italy, Spain, Germany, Holland, Great Britain, Switzerland, Japan, Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

The exchange students, ages 15 to 18, arrive in late August and early September and leave at the end of the school year. SADD raises awareness

By Ted Ratyna

The Students Against Driving Drunk chapter at Andover High School conducted a demonstration called "Awareness Day" during which a member of SADD left his or her class every 10 minutes and returned dressed in black. This represented the death that occurs every 10 minutes by drunk driving.

The students couldn't talk or show emotion for the rest of the school day after they "died." Students then gathered in the foyer of the school for an announcement by SADD President Amy O'Sullivan explaining the purpose of the activity. This event has been done for the past two years.

SADD put red ribbons on every car in the high school parking lot the day of holiday release to remind everyone not to drink or drive over the holidays. After the holiday assembly candy canes with messages "Keep the holiday spirit alive: Don't drink and drive," were given out by SADD members to all the students and faculty. A newsletter, coordinated by Chris DeMartino, was mailed to all high school students.

The newsletter contained interviews, poetry and some holiday-related updates.

Ted Ratyna is a senior at Andover High.

Digital gives computer systems

Other recipient schools include Acton Boxborough High, Algonquin Regional High, Assabet Valley Regional Vocational High, Bedford High, Bumcoat School, Worcester, Catholic Memorial High, Concord High, Hudson High, Marlborough High, Maynard High, Minuteman Vocational Technical, Nashoba Regional High, Revere High, St. John's High and South Berkshire County High.

"Education has always been a high priority for Digital. We recognize the increased demand that is placed on schools today in preparing students for the future," said Ann Hurd, manager of Digital's Massachusetts community relations program.

"Digital is pleased to provide resources that will assist in the continued delivery of quality education in Massachusetts."

In addition to computer hardware, Digital provided funding support to launch a training program called an "Introduction to DECstation 212/316 Microcomputers" through French River Education Center in North Oxford.

In preparation for the opening of the school year, the introductory course was conducted during the summer for teachers participating in the grant program.

The equipment grants and training have augmented existing curricula and other classroom activities planned by teachers throughout this academic year, Mr. Kwajewski said.

"Digital's equipment grant meets a critical need for this technology at Andover High School," he said. "We are very pleased that the computer equipment will allow us to enhance computer literacy among students, teachers and staff."

Kaleidoscope has summer plans

Andover will once again play host this summer to the Kaleidoscope enrichment program for children ages 3 to 12. In its 12th year, Kaleidoscope draws learners from more than 30 communities to participate in courses with titles like "Lights, Camera, Action!," "Author Author," "Parlons Français" and "Adventures in Science."

Kaleidoscope courses often offer children an opportunity to study subjects in-depth that they are not exposed to in their regular curriculum, according to Janis Baron, director of the program. A first-grader can begin to learn French, for instance, or a third-grader can take a photography course.

Other students crave more than they get in their regular classroom.

"For example, while all children study science in school and probably do several experiments during the year, the child truly interested in science has merely had his appetite whetted," Mrs. Baron said.

An important aspect of Kaleidoscope is the "hands-on" nature of the courses, in which students create take-home projects.

Ms. Baron said that one mother told her that she and her husband hardly get a chance to say anything at dinner because the kids are anxious to share what they have done in their courses.

Teachers for the program include Andover professionals, as well as educators from other communities, many of whom attended creative-thinking workshops where they met Mrs. Baron, a statewide educational consultant.

She says Kaleidoscope is unique in the variety of challenges it offers youngsters.

"I do not know of any program where a 4-year-old child can spend the morning engrossed in computer programs and the afternoon exploring 'Knights and Castles,'" she said. "Children have many varied interests, and a program like Kaleidoscope invites them to explore new topics as well as become more proficient in familiar subjects."

Last year, Kaleidoscope students made several movies, presented plays, staged a circus, produced a kids' work-out video, took field trips, published books, wrote their own songs, created dollhouses and baked desserts.

The founding premise of the program is simply that "learning should be fun," Mrs. Baron said. She said the idea is to combine outstanding faculty, small classes (average size is 12) and high-interest topics.

The program runs in one-week sessions July 13-31 at West Elementary School. There are morning (9 to 11:30) and afternoon (noon to 2:30) courses in everything from computers to kung fu. New courses include "Disney Delights," "Frogs and Toads," "Illustration Fascination," "Multicultural Crafts" and "Cars, Cars, Cars."

Registration is by mail. Brochures are available through the public library, Department of Community Services office and public and private schools. Or call 475-1422.

'While all children study science in school, the child truly interested in science has merely had his appetite whetted.'

Introducing St. John's new day surgery center. And re-introducing old-fashioned, personal care.

Health care professionals across the country are impressed by our new, state-of-the-art Ambulatory Surgery Center.

But people around here are just as impressed by something that's been a St. John's tradition for more than a century: the personal, individual care we give each patient.

Of course, we're very proud of the center, with its advanced medical technology and world-class arthroscopy suite.

But, frankly, we're equally proud of our reputation for treating every patient with dignity and care.

And that's something our Ambulatory Surgery Center patients can appreciate, too.

Painter gives demonstration

Artist William Maloney will demonstrate oil painting from a video at a meeting of the Andover Artists Guild Sunday, Jan. 19.

The meeting will begin at 2 p.m. at North Parish Church in Olde North Andover Center.

Mr. Maloney, a resident of Saugus and West Harwich, received a bachelor of fine arts degree in painting from Massachusetts College of Art and has studied under nationally known marine painter Don Stone.

For the past 20 years, Mr. Maloney has been art director of Raytheon Service Co.

His paintings in oil, watercolor and acrylic feature a realistic "en plein air" style in marine subjects such as the rocky coast of Monhegan Island, Maine, and the harbors of Cape Cod.

Mr. Maloney received first prize in the large painting exhibit by the Copley Society; a ribbon at the North Shore Suburban Art exhibit; and the American Artist Professional League's Director's Award. He has exhibited at many venues, such as the Salmagundi Club and Northeast Water Color Association in New York.

Non-members will pay a $2 fee; refreshments will be served.

Choral Society sings St. John Passion

The Andover Choral Society will perform J.S. Bach's St. John Passion at Merrimack College's Collegiate Church of Christ the Teacher.

The performance will take place Sunday, Jan. 19, at 3 p.m.

Allen Combs is the conductor. Tickets are $10, $5 for children under 12, at the door.

A cast of dreamers

Troupe puts on LaMancha

Informal surveys conducted by the Andover Theatre Company indicated that men age 50 and over feel a strong empathy for "The Impossible Dream," the quest of the Man of LaMancha.

"The compromises they must make in their lives make the defense of truth and honor all the more appealing," explained Alison Colby, the troupe's publicity director.

The theater group will present Man of LaMancha Jan. 31 and Feb. 1, 7 and 8 at 8 p.m. There will be a special matinee Sunday, Feb. 2, at 2 p.m. All shows will be at Doherty Middle School.

"But the show is not intended exclusively for men or individuals 50-plus," Ms. Colby said. "The show can be enjoyed on many different levels."

The musical has many well-loved songs, such as "Dulcinea," "The Impossible Dream," "Little Bird," "I'm Only Thinking of Him," "Golden Helmet."

Mark Nichols is Don Quixote, Maureen Woodell is Aldonza and Michael Blanchette is Sancho. The auditions drew people from as far away as Manchester and Beverly.

The set depicts the dungeonsque cell of the Spanish Inquisition. The cell is designed to be transformed before the audience's eyes into the equally dismal inn.

"This is an enormous undertaking, requiring an unusually large budget to bring this popular musical to the ATC audiences," Ms. Colby said.

Tickets may be reserved by calling the company's information line at 475-4221. They are $10, for adults and $8 for seniors and children under 18.

Poet has dinner with League

The Andover League of Women Voters has invited poet and Andover resident Thylas Moss to its winter dinner meeting on Thursday, Jan. 23.

Ms. Moss recently won two national awards for her work.

A teacher of English at Phillips Academy, Ms. Moss was one of the 10 American winners of the Whiting Award for her works, and, in particular, her book Remnants in Rock Bottom Ghetto Sky.

She won the Dewars Profile Performance Artist Award for submitting a group of poems and reading "Poem for My Mothers and Other Makers of Asafetida."

Thylas Moss

The Monitor Channel, Channel 68, this week filmed a documentary piece on Ms. Moss teaching poetry writing and reading from her works. Bravo television will feature her Monday, Jan. 27, at 9 p.m. on the Dewars Profile Performance Arts Awards.

Her first children's book, I Want to Be, "a story written poetically," will soon be published by Dial Book for Young Readers.

The league dinner will be held at the China Blossom in North Andover with cash bar at 6:30 p.m. and buffet dinner at 7. The cost is $12.50, payable at the door.

For reservations, call Karen Kriz at 470-0645.

Andre Dubus gives reading

Merrimack Arts will host a reading by fiction writer Andre Dubus Wednesday, Jan. 22, at 6:30 p.m. in the McQuade Library Auditorium at Merrimack College.

Critics have called Mr. Dubus "one of America's finest storytellers" and "a master craftsman."

Mr. Dubus will read selections from his work. The public is invited.

Born in Louisiana, he spent five peacetime years (between the Korean and Vietnam wars) in the Marine Corps, and emerged as a captain followed by two years at the Iowa Writers' Workshop. His novel, The Lieutenant, was published in 1967.

Since then he has published seven volumes of short stories and novellas as well as occasional essays.

The essays are now collected in one volume, Broken Vessels, published in July.

Mr. Dubus, who has recovered from the 1986 accident that cost him a leg, now lives in Haverhill.

His awards include a Guggenheim Fellowship, the first Laurence L. Winship Award of the Boston Globe (1975), the 1987 Scheaffer-PEN New England Award for Literary Distinction, and the Jean Stein Award of the American Academy of Arts and Letters (1988).

Mr. Dubus became a MacArthur Fellow in July 1988. In June, 1991, he and Frederick Busch were jointly awarded the PEN/Malamud Prize for Short Fiction.

He received an honorary doctorate from Merrimack College in 1989.

Here's why we read the ANDOVER TOWNSMAN

"I read the Townsmen to keep up to date on the sports teams and to know what's going on around town. Not living in Andover can sometimes make me feel like an outsider, but the Townsmen fills me in on what's going on."

Mary Wermers, Girls Diving Coach

"The Townsmen has always been our main source of advertisement for plays and other events. I also think it's a great paper to read to know about town politics and school activities and they cover a broader scope than Andover itself which keeps the reading interesting."

Country Club vote delayed

By Don Stáruk

Planners Tuesday night delayed a vote on Andover Country Club's plan to build a 108-lot subdivision after receiving a last-minute report from police that questioned the safety of the development's planned exit road onto Beacon Street.

The police department report didn't reach the planner's office until Tuesday afternoon. It comments on an engineer's traffic study and raises safety issues regarding cars coming off Chandler Road onto Beacon Street just before the proposed intersection of a new road.

Stephen Colyer, planning director, asked for more time to review police comments to see if the issues can be resolved. Mr. Colyer said that, without more time, he would have had to recommend against approval of the project because of the safety issues.

Planners asked Phillip Sullivan, attorney for club owner Yvon Cormier, for a two-week delay. The vote on the definitive site plan and two related permits was rescheduled for the Jan. 28 Planning Board meeting.

Planners also reviewed a list of 39 conditions that would apply to the development if and when it is eventually approved. The conditions cover issues of earth removal, drainage, hours of operation for contractors, and other details of construction.

One of the conditions states the Planning Board members' intention that their allowing the golf course fairways to be counted as open space for a cluster development does not make the land tax exempt, as conservation land usually is.

Attorney Sullivan asked that this condition be taken out. He said making tax decisions went beyond the authority of the Planning Board and that such a decision should be up to the assessor.

"I don't think your board has the power to do that," Mr. Sullivan said.

Board members disagreed and Susan Stott restated the members' intentions.

"This is still taxable land," Ms. Stott said.

John O'Brien, planning chairman, asked Mr. Colyer to get an opinion from William Krajewski, assessor, on the future tax status of the proposed open space before the Jan. 28 meeting.

Greek church hosts children

Children from an orphanage in New York will visit Andover this weekend.

The Greek Ladies Philoptochos Society of Sts. Constantine and Helen Church will host the children of St. Basil Orphanage from Garrison, N.Y., Jan. 17-19.

St. Basil Academy was purchased by the National Greek Ladies Philoptochos Society in 1944. Located on the former 250-acre Ruppert Estate on the Hudson River, the orphanage was to house Greek-American orphans throughout America and Canada. Today it is still used as a residential full-service, child-care center.

But modern needs have broadened the scope of the original plans for the school. Today, not only the death of parents but divorce, extreme poverty or illness are the reasons students are accepted to the institution, according to Elaine Kevgas, president of the local Philoptochos.

The children will be housed at the homes of parishioners. The women of Philoptochos will have a home-cooked meal ready for the guests and host families at the Church Community Center on Chandler Road on Friday.

On Saturday, after a lunch served by local businesses, the children will leave for the Hellenic Nursing Home in Canton where they will sing Greek songs for the patients. Afterward, they will tour Boston and end their day at Hellenic College/Holy Cross Seminary in Brookline.

Sts. Constantine's parent-teacher association will host a family get-together in the evening, featuring a pizza party for the children compliments of local businesses. The Greek and American dance is free and open to the community.

The young guests will participate in Sunday's divine liturgy by singing the responses. The traditional cutting of the vasilopita will be held after the liturgy. The vasilopita is a special bread baked at New Year's in every Greek home. A gold coin is baked in the bread, and the person who receives the piece of bread containing the coin is said to have a year of good luck. All the proceeds of the vasilopita are sent to St. Basil Academy to help support this only Greek orphanage in the Americas, Ms. Kevgas said.

The American Hellenic Educational Progressive Association and the Daughters of Penelope are also major benefactors of the St. Basil Academy, but this is the first time the children from the academy have visited here.

Law, art scholarships available for UU students

Unitarian Universalist scholarships are available for students entering law school or preparing for a career in the fine arts. See the announcement on the church's bulletin board.

Juiceman drinks to good health

sion going to make selling us cabbage heads?"

The National Cancer Institute has been studying beta carotene - the plant form of Vitamin A found in orange and leafy green vegetables - for its preventive possibilities. Carrots, apricots, sweet potatoes and spinach may help the body fight cancer. Maybe Popeye had the right idea.

Selling juicers in 1948 was "like pulling teeth. It's only been in the latter part of the '80s that people have been aware of this," Mr. Kordich says.

Traditional medicine treats the symptoms of disease, not the cause, says Mr. Kordich. "You know when you see a sign that says 'health care,' that's BS. That's sick care."

Although juicing vegetables destroys their fiber, it may provide important nutrients in large volume, says Deborah Bates of Andover, a registered dietician at Holy Family Hospital.

"When you make carrot juice, you're using maybe a pound of carrots to make one glass, so you are power-packing a lot of beta carotene," she says.

Ms. Bates, who follows a vegetarian diet and owns a juicer herself, still cautions the health conscious to be sure to get enough fiber and calcium in their diets. "I see no problem with having a V8; that's great," she says, but it should supplement a well-balanced diet that includes raw fruits and vegetables and dairy products.

Mr. Kordich knows he's not going to change the world with a juicer machine. "I realize you're not going to give up your goodies. If you like your steaks, your coffee, your soda pops and cakes, then you really need to offset the bad stuff with juice," he says. "Of course, it would be better to abstain."

And it would be even better to get your vegetables from your own garden, to make sure they're pesticide-free. Failing that, join a food co-op. And never buy bottled juices, which go through a pasteurization process that kills the beneficial enzymes, says Mr. Kordich.

It's not a heroic effort, the Juiceman says. "I'm just an ordinary guy who believes in what he's doing."

Parking ticket crackdown delayed to March 1

By Don Staruk

The Board of Selectmen Monday night sidetracked a plan by the town manager and police to collect some of the roughly $18,000 owed to the town in unpaid parking tickets.

Police had planned to begin next week towing and impounding the cars of habitual parking violators to try and recoup some of the money owed by about 200 delinquent motorists. Motorists targeted include those who owe between $50 and $315, according to Buzz Stapczynski, town manager.

"The average is about $200," Mr. Stapczynski said.

The towing program was to begin this Tuesday, Jan. 21, and focus on the downtown. But selectmen voted unanimously to delay the start of program until March 1, and asked Mr. Stapczynski to try and notify each of the persons on the list of the town's intentions.

"That would be fair," said Selectman Charles Wesson.

Mr. Stapczynski and Tony Torrisi, budget and finance director, told board members articles about the program had already appeared in the newspaper in November, that the Andover Center Association had warned downtown merchants of the program in the associations December newsletter, and that publicity about the program would be in the newspaper again this week.

But Mr. Wesson and Selectman Larry Larsen said sending a letter to the individuals involved was the best way to proceed.

At least one resident at the meeting questioned whether the towing program wouldn't drive shoppers away from the retail district much like it was feared the proposed $15 parking tickets would do last fall.

Enzo Fossella, owner of Enzo of Andover and president of the Andover Chamber of Commerce, said he did not think the towing of cars with multiple outstanding parking tickets was comparable to the raising of parking ticket fines.

"I think it's a little different thing," Mr. Fossella said.

Starts March 1

The towing that was to begin next week will now begin on or after Sunday, March 1.

"We're going to start a program to try and collect some of the money's that are owed us," police Lt. Phillip Froburg said Monday.

Vehicles will be impounded until the outstanding fines, plus towing and storage charges, are paid. A tow charge is a minimum of $30. Storage is $20 a day.

The $18,000 is the amount owed for approximately 1,500 unpaid parking tickets issued in 1990 and 1991, according to Lt. Froburg.

Police began a tow program last fall, but stopped it to give the Andover Center Association merchants and the town a chance to warn residents, employees and commuters, so violators would have another chance to pay the tickets.

"Hopefully they would pay up and we wouldn't have to tow anybody," Lt. Froburg said.

Motorists have 21 days to pay what is usually a $10 fine. After 21 days, a $5 penalty is added. When a motorist has two or more outstanding parking tickets, the town notifies the Registry of Motor Vehicles. The registry charges the town $10, which is added to the motorist's bill, and does not allow the motorist to renew his or her driver's license or auto registration until the fines are paid.

The town's initial push will be to go after motorists with five or more outstanding parking tickets, Lt. Froburg said.

Warrant closes with 52 articles

ing for their employees and customers, would pay into the fund. The warrant would then be used to build off-street parking.

The only catch with the idea, which has been suggested before, is that nobody knows where or when such a facility could be built.

The other article added Monday night would establish a revolving account for the Community Services Department. The account would make it easier for the department to avoid running a deficit, according to Mr. Stapczynski.

Among the other 50 articles are:

- A School Committee request for $250,000 for plans for a new school building;
- Seven zoning bylaw amendments, including two regarding unregistered cars, one of which is a private article;
- A $2.67 million request for water main construction;
- A private article that requests $500 for a Fish Brook footbridge;
- 12 street acceptances.

The Board of Selectmen can reopen the warrant to add an article, and selectmen indicated they may do so.

Two articles still under consideration propose early retirement plans for town employees and teachers.

Another article that may be added deals with sidewalk improvements.

Tax exemptions, deferrals for elderly, but no relief for the unemployed

By Don Staruk

Andover's elders may be eligible for tax exemptions or tax deferrals, but no help is yet available for residents who may be facing economic hardship because they are unemployed, according to William J. Krajeski, assessor.

Mr. Krajeski outlined the available tax relief at the Board of Selectmen's meeting Monday night on the request of Selectman Larry Larsen. Mr. Larsen last week had asked Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, to find out what options were available for both the elderly on fixed incomes, and other residents who may have been laid off recently, and are having trouble making ends met.

Andover allowed more than $160,000 in tax exemptions in fiscal 1991, according to Mr. Krajeski. Those exemptions were for approximately 350 property owners, according to Tony Torrisi, budget and finance director. Town Meeting sets a sum aside each year for exemptions.

Exemptions are typically for the elderly, but other qualification factors are blindness, disability, surviving children and poverty.

But poverty cases require one or more of the other qualifications, and the current laws have no sympathy for the unemployed, according to Mr. Krajeski. Legislation is being discussed that may change the law, which currently excludes exemptions solely for the reason of being impoverished, Mr. Krajeski said.

Applicants have three months from the date of issue of the tax bill to file for an exemption.

Who qualifies

"An exemption is a privilege and not necessarily a right," Mr. Krajeski warned Monday, and applicants still need to meet certain qualifications despite their age.

Typically, exemptions are for people 70 years of age (in some cases 65), who have been a resident of the state for the preceding 10 years and have owned the property they seek an exemption on for the previous five years.

The greatest number of exemptions fall under clause 17D of the tax law, according to the assessor. This clause provides a $175 exemption.

This clause provides for widows and widowers, minor children with one parent deceased, and persons who were 70 years of age or older by the end of the previous fiscal year.

Those who qualify must have owned the property in Andover for five years, and have a whole estate value, (not including the price of their home), not exceeding $40,000. Annual income is not a factor in this clause.

Clauses 17, 17c and 17C1/2 are variations on these qualifications.

The second largest number of exemptions are granted for clause 41C, which provides relief for those 70 years of age or older. This is a $500 exemption.

Those who qualify must have owned property in the state for 10 years, and in Andover for five years. Single persons cannot have an estate (excluding the home value) that exceeds $28,000 and an income of $13,000. Married persons' estates cannot exceed $30,000, and have an income of more than $15,000.

Clauses 41 and 41B have other qualification factors.

Anyone who thinks he or she may be eligible for an exemption should call the assessor's office. The names of those who apply for exemptions are kept private, Mr. Krajeski said.

Tax Deferrals

Tax deferrals are also available for those who qualify.

A tax deferral may allow a person with a limited income, but who owns his or her home, to put off paying a portion of his or her taxes. The deferred amount goes as a lien against the property and accumulates interest. The deferral can be added to each year.

The lien can be paid off at any time, but is commonly paid at the time of sale of the property or at the settlement of the estate, according to the assessor.

The deferral requires an income of not more than $20,000, but the town may be considering a local ordinance that would increase that amount to $40,000.

Questions on deferrals can be answered at the assessor's office.

Margaret Cronin, of Summer Street, asked Mr. Krajeski what relief is available for those on fixed incomes and who might not have a problem paying their tax bills, but can't meet the new quarterly deadlines because of when and how they get the income.

Those people might include persons who depend on investment dividend checks that are only issued once or twice a year, Ms. Cronin said.

Mr. Krajeski and the selectmen deferred the question to Mike Muise, tax collector, who was not at Monday night's meeting. Selectmen asked to hear from Mr. Muise at their next meeting on Monday, Feb. 3.

Learning tolerance at Andover High School

should confront discrimination head on and promote greater sensitivity to racial, ethnic, gender and human-rights issues by learning more about other cultures.

"Most of us will never understand what it's like to attend a school where 99 percent of the teachers and students are of a different race and the curriculum doesn't address issues particular to our culture," he said.

"AHS has far fewer diversities than where most of you will go to school or work in the future," Mr. Thomas said.

Doug Gordon, a senior at the school, told the Townsmen the forum exceeded his expectations. He was instrumental in bringing the team here.

"I didn't hear a whisper from students in the audience," said Mr. Gordon. "That showed me they're willing to listen and that's the best first step."

He said the athletes "didn't point fingers and call the students racist pigs," rather they asked the students to look at the way they act and think about people from different cultures.

Mr. Gordon, of 16 Balknap Drive, is active in anti-semitism causes at Temple Emanuel in Andover, where members have dealt with the problem. He called the Anti-Defamation League because he wanted more information about dealing with discrimination and it was from that group he learned about Project Teamwork. He called that group and then brought news of it to the high school.

Andover High had already begun to address discrimination this year. Several students questioned if derogatory language in a school play or dressing up in Native American headdress and face paint sent messages of intolerance to the community. In both cases the school's student government and faculty discussed the situations and modifications were made to the play, and face painting at sporting events was discouraged.

Project Teamwork's mission is to encourage awareness of all discrimination by having professional athletes trained in human rights sensitivity talk with students. The message the athletes sent was that discrimination and racism are learned behaviors that can be unlearned through education and understanding.

Project Teamwork speakers Lin Dawson, former tight end for the New England Patriots; Holly Metcalf, a gold medal winner in rowing at the 1984 Olympics; and Luis Tiant, a former pitcher for the Boston Red Sox, told students about discrimination they've faced.

"I'm the best at what I do," said Mr. Dawson. "I took on the best professional football players and won every time, but I can't fight the battle for my 5-year-old son when he comes home and tells me some children don't want to play with him because he's black."

"How can I help my 4-year-old daughter be proud of the braids in her hair when everything around her is blond and long?"

He told the students the real world is much bigger than the AHS community and if students are going to succeed, they must question what they are taught about stereotyping people who are different from them.

"When I was growing up in the projects in Eastern North Carolina, I wanted to fit in and be cool. To fit in I'd go along with other people telling me what my character should be and what jokes to laugh at and what I should think about other people who weren't cool like us," he said.

"We learn prejudices from our families, friends and the media and our culture. Some of the things you've been taught in your household you have to start dealing with as you get out into the real world. And the real world is much bigger than Andover High School, young people," Mr. Dawson said.

Mr. Tiant, who didn't speak English when he arrived in the United States at age 17 to play baseball, said he went through "hell" because of discrimination.

"I want to talk to you about ethnic pride. It does not mean that one race is beneath another. We are all human beings and we have to learn to live together," he said.

"I'm from Cuba and I'm Hispanic. I'm proud to be both Cuban and Hispanic, but I'm also an American citizen," he said.

"You would think when a baseball player makes it to the big league that things would change, but they did not for me. Some do not like you because of the way you look, the way you speak or where you come from. Some black players did not like me because I was not born in this country," Mr. Tiant said.

He told the students that they are the future of this country and if they want to be respected they have to respect others.

Holly Metcalf, the only woman and white member of the Project Teamwork speakers, said she faced a different kind of discrimination than Mr. Dawson or Mr. Tiant.

"Some of you might have a problem seeing me as an athlete on a comparable level as these other two," she said. "You have to think about what society has taught you. I grew up in a society that said if you were a woman and an athlete that you must be gay, or you didn't like men or you were angry about something," Ms. Metcalf said.

"I'm glad I didn't listen to those people," she said as she pulled her Olympic gold medal from her pocket and placed it around her neck.

Mr. Thomas told the Townsmen AHS will form a "human rights coalition" made up of students and a faculty adviser. Within the next month, Project Teamwork members will return to the high school to meet with the coalition and start training sessions and cultural-awareness activities.

Principal Thomas said he was pleased with the forum, that the athletes captured the students' attention. He is looking forward to starting the coalition and furthering the message of the afternoon.

Larry Lewis is running for school board

By Lisa Boudreau

Larry Lewis has taken out nomination papers for the School Committee, so now there are two candidates for the two open seats on the committee. The election is March 23. Incumbent Dick Hubbell has also taken out nomination papers, according to Town Clerk Randy Hanson.

Neither Mr. Hubbell, 74 Wildrose Drive, nor Mr. Lewis, 75 Stevens St., have returned their papers to the clerk's office with the required 50 signatures of registered voters.

Deadline to turn in papers for certification is Feb. 4 for all elected positions in town.

Mr. Lewis is a member of the Shaw-sheen Parent Teacher Organization and a member of the School Committee's sub-committee on instruction. He and his wife, Karen Lewis, an optometrist, have a 7-year-old son, a 4-year-old daughter and a 7-month-old son.

"I have a long-term interest in maintaining the quality of education in town," Mr. Lewis told the Townsmen.

"I've attended the majority of committee meetings over the past few years and I think I can help the process," he said.

Cliff Scott, 11 High St., who was appointed to the School Committee last year to fill a vacancy when a member resigned, said he will not run for election.

Board of Selectmen

Selectmen incumbents Gerald Silverman, 56 Dufton Road, and Charles Wesson, 13 Marwood Drive, have both returned their nomination papers to the clerk's office. They are the only declared candidates for the two open seats on the Board of Selectmen.

Moderator

Incumbent Moderator James Doherty, 9 Juniper Road, and three-time challenger John Doyle, 40 Reservation, are the only declared candidates for that post. Mr. Doherty has already returned his papers to the clerk's office.

21st Century talk at West Elementary

The Board of Selectmen will host another 21st century discussion on Monday, Jan. 27, at 7:30 p.m. at West Elementary School on Beacon Street.

This will be the board's third such discussion at an elementary school in town.

The board is forming a mission and vision statement to help direct the town government into the next decade.

Members would like input as to what issues residents would like to see as priorities for the town in the next 20 years.

All residents, especially those in the West school district, are invited and encouraged to attend.

Schools crowded; something has to be done

By Lisa Boudreau

The Andover schools' population grew by nearly 200 students this year. The largest increase was at the elementary schools.

The School Committee anticipates the elementary population will increase during the next five years and it is currently in the process of finding ways to alleviate the overcrowding.

Superintendent Mark McQuillan said the increases were not solely due to the return of kindergarten classes to neighborhood elementary schools. He said West Andover, especially, has experienced new housing growth, despite tough economic conditions.

Turning Shawsheen School into a kindergarten through grade five elementary school may no longer be an option the committee is willing to explore after the majority of parents rejected the idea at a public hearing last week.

The committee is still looking into redistricting and building additions to lessen overcrowding in three of the town's four elementary schools and even out the population in the two middle schools.

The committee said it would either choose an option or decide to study the matter further at its next meeting, Tuesday, Jan. 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the school administration building on Whittier Street.

According to studies done by a consultant the Committee hired three years ago, all four elementary schools are overcrowded. The study was based on a desired classroom of 22 students or fewer per teacher.

If the administration were to increase the student-teacher ratio to 25 to 1, the maximum allowed under the current School Committee policy, West, Sanborn and South Elementary schools would still be considered overcrowded. Bancroft Elementary could afford to add 42 more students before it reached the maximum enrollment.

West Elementary School is the largest primary school in the system. It's also the most crowded. There are 899 students at West Elementary, according to October 1991 enrollment figures.

Because of crowded conditions, some elementary schools have separate art, music and special education rooms while others don't.

Assistant Principal Charlie Friel said West Elementary's music room was converted into a regular classroom this year. The music teacher moves from room to room with his supplies on a cart.

Sanborn and South Elementary lost both their art and music rooms this year.

"We have art on a cart and music on a cart," said South Principal Jade Reitman.

Bancroft Elementary is the only primary school that was able to keep an art and a music room open this year.

Equity of service was a repeated question parents asked the School Committee at last week's public hearing. Parents wanted to be assured that their children would have the same benefits as other children in the system. For that reason, many said they would support additions to overcrowded buildings.

At West Middle School, which draws students exclusively from West and Sanborn Elementary schools, teachers have as many as 29 students per class. At Doherty Middle School, which is a larger building than West Middle, there are classrooms with as few as 20 students.

Dr. McQuillan said the School Committee's redistricting or building addition decisions on an option will be based on the following considerations:

- Maintain equity of service across the system;
- Balance the populations at the two middle schools;

- Relieve overcrowding at West and South Elementary schools;

- Maintain student-teacher ratios at the four elementary and two middle schools;

- Maximize the number of students who could walk to school.

Below is a graph comparing the elementary and middle schools in Andover. The information is compiled from school administration records and interviews with school personnel.

Run for town office

The last day to file nomination paper for the March 23 town election is Tuesday, Feb. 4.

We don't know about you, but we are worried since only two people are running for the School Committee. Richard Hubbell, the incumbent, has taken out papers, and this week we learn that Larry Lewis, who has been active with the Shawsheen Parent Teacher Organization, has announced his intention to run for a three-year seat on the committee.

There are two seats available on the School Committee. That board is one of the most important in town right now. It faces far-reaching decisions about overcrowded schools and therefore redistricting; and it faces other budget-related agendas such as pupil-teacher ratio and teacher salaries.

Yes, serving on the School Committee is a big commitment, but educating our children is one of our most important tasks and Andover needs people who care and who will devote time and expertise to the task. Consider taking out papers.

Then there are two seats coming available on the Board of Selectmen. The two incumbents, Chairman Gerald Silverman and member Charles Wesson, have returned their nomination papers. They have been good members of that board but we still hate to see the two of them run unopposed. A community that has contested battles for town offices is more healthy than one in which incumbents walk back into office. Having a fight for a slot brings out issues and discussions that help residents and officials get their priorities in order.

It also would be good if someone joined John Doyle in opposing incumbent Jim Doherty for the position of town moderator. Mr. Doyle has run unsuccessfully against Mr. Doherty three times; perhaps it is time to add new blood to that race.

Running for office, and holding office, adds all sorts of dimensions to a person's life. It also adds much to the community. Think it over.

Let the child feel what she's feeling

By Perry Colmore Catlin

A couple of years ago my son walked in the front door, having taken a girl friend to the airport. He clearly was depressed.

"What's wrong?" I asked, too nudgie to let be what was, too impatient to wait to let what was wrong unfold in its own good time.

"I don't know," he said. And he left the room.

Several months later, he and I were talking and he complained that adults won't let kids feel what they feel. At first I was crushed. Me? Come on, I told him, I have always listened to you and been sympathetic. In fact, I've cared more about my children than anything in the world.

That's the trouble, said he. The trouble with adults is they have to fix everything.

Finally I got it. What he was saying was that as soon as a child feels sad, mad, scared (or whatever), fill in the blank with an emotion, the parent or adult (teacher, leader, pediatrician) tries to fix it.

That's a losing situation for the parent and the child. The parent often can't "fix" it and therefore fails at the attempt; and when the adult or parent gives the depressed child 10 reasons why he/she shouldn't be depressed, the child begins to feel his feelings aren't valid, that she has no right to feel them and that she must be wrong.

So if the parent/adult/teacher constantly is telling the child that life isn't so bad, that he should be grateful for what he has, that the pain is not there, then the child stops sharing his feelings with the adult because the adult tries to take that young person's feelings away from him.

It's a difficult lesson to learn and I often forget it, but I am most grateful to my son, and also to my daughter, both of whom have helped me learn that it is OK for them not to be OK all the time, that they will recover. In fact, they will be better if I let them feel what they are feeling and don't try to talk them out of it.

Superintendent writes on redistricting

By Mark McQuillan

Samuel Johnson once invoked the concept of natural justice to describe the outrage audiences often feel when they learn that Cordelia, the most faithful of King Lear's three daughters, has been hanged in the last act of the play.

As citizens we are driven by our own concepts of natural justice and convictions that, if anything, we have the right to choose what is best for ourselves and our loved ones.

Choice enters into questions of where we choose to worship - if indeed we do worship - whom we associate with, where we live and where we go to school.

Where one goes to school was the focus last week of a rancorous debate over whether or not the Andover

Redistricting suggestions

Editor, Townsmen:

At last week's school re-districting hearing, the School Committee gave the public the opportunity to participate in an important planning process. We were impressed with the committee's openness to new ideas as well as the quality of the ideas that were expressed. We feel compelled to share with you what we believe to be the best combination of proposals for the most people.

Best idea: Renovate the east wing to become a central district elementary school. This could replace Shawsheen with a school of true equity and enroll 150 more students, satisfying our immediate space needs.

Reality: There are two problems with this solution. First, it is clear that space which is "as good or better" for the Senior Center must be found and a decision to move them into that space must be made - no small task. Second, it may not be realistic to expect that new space can be found, renovated, seniors moved, east wing renovated, etc., in time for the opening of school in Sept. '92.

Alternative: Two clear messages were heard at the meeting. Parents do not believe that Shawsheen can be an adequate K-5 and they do not support the current re-districting plan which confuses the elementary and middle school issues. An alternative that would disrupt the fewest families while giving the quickest space relief would involve the following steps:

1) Construct a separate and optimized middle school re-districting plan. The suggestion of a "swing district" has merit because of the built-in flexibility. This plan would enable the school administration to set optimized targets each year. Even the proposed plan could be adequate, providing the new Shawsheen district fifth-graders would go on to Doherty, regardless of where they continue to attend elementary school.

Use Shawsheen to its fullest capacity with the least renovation and expense. The scenario outlined below will use all 10 classrooms and enroll about 296 students or 230 FTSE.

a) Create a Shawsheen neighborhood school district and send all kindergarten students from this district to Shawsheen.

b) Encourage this year's open enrollees to stay and form two second grades and four first grades. All first- and second-grade students whose families move into the Shawsheen district will supplement this population. The Early Childhood program (two classes) should also remain at Shawsheen.

c) Market Shawsheen's integrated primary concept through the area's nursery schools, the Townsmen and with a Shawsheen open house. Also, take advantage of the proximity of SHED to the Shawsheen school. This year more than half of the enrolled kindergarten students used SHED and there is every reason to believe it would attract many students to Shawsheen again next year. The two marketing initiatives could add another four kindergarten classes (as they did this year).

The components of successful open enrollment are communication and incentive. If the School Committee's plans are communicated early enough and if the parents of potential students are informed about the integrated primary concept we will have accomplished most of this. Offering more incentive to targeted areas must also be considered. For instance, by offering bus transportation at a reasonable fee ($100-$200) to South enrollees. This scenario benefits all students at South, those that go to Shawsheen as well as those that stay at South in less crowded class rooms.

If we give open enrollment a real chance to succeed, we will be filling Shawsheen with students who want to be there and will not be forcing other students to leave their schools. By keeping Shawsheen as K-2 we do not waste valuable resources in a poor attempt to bring Shawsheen up to K-5 standards. At the same time we can solve the middle school inequities in a direct and expeditious manner.

Superintendent writes about school redistricting

School Committee should adopt a "K-5 Plan" that could redistrict 300 students into new elementary schools and redirect 50 more into Doherty Middle School. Briefly described, the K-5 Plan attempted to correct an under-utilization of classroom space at Bancroft, Shawsheen and Doherty Middle School, by selectively moving clusters of elementary students from one site to another.

In a single stroke, the plan established a new "feeder" pattern into Doherty; brought all schools' enrollment figures under maximum capacity levels; reinstituted a neighborhood school in the Shawsheen district; and established a measure of stability for a minimum of five years - all for the price of making minor renovations to the Shawsheen School and upgrading its educational facilities. The estimated one-time expense to equalize available classroom space, balance pupil-teacher ratios and achieve parities in our special education, art and music programs was approximately $85,000.

At the heart of the controversy was whether or not it is fair to compel parents to accept a solution that, on paper at least, is "best" for everyone. Moving children from Sanborn to West Elementary, it was suggested, offered Sanborn parents a chance to reclaim art and music classrooms lost to overcrowding; even the school's pupil-teacher ratios; divert the influx of new enrollees anticipated in FY '94; and contribute to a system-wide solution to overcrowding. Parents opposed this analysis and intimated that they would rather face dilution of certain programs than uproot their children.

This perspective drives to the heart of whether governments and, by implication, school committees, can allow a minority to make decisions that might adversely affect the majority of citizens they serve. Presumably, if a majority of Sanborn parents agreed that they would rather face overcrowding than move, then a request to stay might be viewed as a reasonable one. Arguably, if Sanborn parents chose not to move and there were no resulting penalty for other schools, then a school committee should perhaps not intervene. Sanborn did, after all enroll as many as 668 students in 1967.

And yet, if Sanborn's circumstances were the same for all schools, matters might be significantly less complicated than they are. Consider, for example, the plight of South families who currently have no art, music and special education classrooms, whose classroom inventory is already fully utilized, whose Chapter I classes are being taught in hallways, whose classroom sizes are reaching toward 30 in third and fourth grades, and whose library is the smallest in the district. Should these parents, who pay the same tax dollars as other parents, not be offered the benefits of space if space is, indeed available? Consider, as well, the problem for West Elementary parents whose building will enroll over 900 students by FY '94. Was it not the responsibility of the School Committee to make these opportunities available to South and West parents as well - even if it means asking some other families - ostensibly Bancroft parents - to move to another school?

Bancroft's dilemma was understandable and acutely painful. Not only might 80 children leave familiar surroundings and friendships, but they would also go to Shawsheen School, a much older and smaller building. The argument was lodged that because of its age and smaller playground facilities, Shawsheen is not an even exchange despite the fact that students entering the school would have access to art and music classrooms, computer areas, small classes, experienced teachers and the same programs. Was this small learning environment, one that families once valiantly fought to maintain as a K-6 neighborhood school, truly the poor relative was often said to be?

Whose needs should now ultimately prevail? Should families be allowed to stay and thus push buildings beyond their maximum enrollment levels - overtaxing teachers and administrators and possibly threatening the quality of our already diminished art and music programs? Do facilities alone determine quality of educational services and instructional programs? Should not all Andoverites, as citizens concerned with sharing resources, be searching for an equitable solution for all? And what if no solutions other than the one debated can be afforded?

The K-5 Plan was one solution among many. It had its flaws, to be sure, and it would be unfair not to continue to search for less invasive alternatives before redistricting. But redistricting is concerned with more than just achieving equities in services and programming. For operational reasons, redistricting also means predictable, cost-effective transportation routes, uninterrupted instructional services, stability in staffing, opportunities for community building and long-range financial planning.

Is there another option that accomplishes as much with the same number of dollars? Can the committee realistically afford to buy a better solution - such as portable classrooms or increased transportation and annual overhead costs associated with running an all-town kindergarten - when it faces the prospect of losing yet another $700,000 from its budget while looking for funds to address the many problems that now plague our buildings - from leaky skylights, to moldy air and unbalanced ventilation systems?

Last week parents urged restraint and not acting in haste. This was wise counsel given the uncertainties and disruptions associated with the K-5 Plan. Yet what will the consequences be if the committee delays another year? Possibly open-enrollment, properly marketed, will ease South's overcrowding for another year, and possibly, between now and next December, a plan will emerge that will allow the conversion of the school department's central office to a K-5 school and the creation and/or construction of a new Senior Center.

But if all of these alternatives fail, should not our Johnsonian sense of justice also be outraged if some children do with less because, in the name of choice or caution, we cannot draw together as a community and, in the final act, work toward the common good?

Supports Shawsheen K-3

Editor, Townsmen:

I have lived in the center of Andover since I was a child. I attended Jackson and Stowe schools. Our children attended Central School. Now all these elementary schools in the center of town are gone.

My father, Edward I. Erickson, was superintendent of schools in Andover for 19 years. I have taught here for 29 years in the elementary schools of Shawsheen and West Elementary. Our family has lived and worked in Andover with pride.

Now I read that no one is supporting the redistricting or the thought of Shawsheen becoming an elementary school again. Well, I am. I am hoping that our three grandchildren will be blessed with an education in a small, caring environment. I feel Shawsheen will be ideal for K-2 or K-3 programs.

Shawsheen school has served our town for over 60 years. Let it help us through yet another school crisis.

Parents care, Mrs. Jenkins

Editor, Townsmen:
Dear Dr. Outwin,

I am writing to express my personal offense at comments made at the Jan. 7 School Committee meeting by Mrs. Susan Jenkins. Her comments suggested that parents only show up at meetings and only care about school issues which personally affect their children.

I beg your pardon, Mrs. Jenkins, and sincerely hope that other School Committee members do not share this attitude.

True, we cannot physically be present at every School Committee meeting - remember we have young children who cannot be left alone. But I have been present at many meetings and have had cable television installed in my home for the primary purpose of being able to follow school issues. Our PTOs have networks of communication which link many parent groups and which monitor School Committee proceedings. We are here, Mrs. Jenkins, and we do care. We are at countless PTO meetings, school functions, speaker forums and town meetings. We volunteer hours and hours of time to assist our teachers and to provide enrichment programs for hundreds of children. We run apple festivals, book fairs, fun fairs, family nights and other fund-raisers to support valuable programs in our schools. We build playgrounds, outdoor amphitheaters, nature trails and other equipment for all of our children to enjoy. We coach sports teams, lead scout troops and are active in many community projects.

We encourage and help our children to organize food and clothing drives, "Toys for Tots" collections and Harvest Festivals, which reach out to our neighbors. We pack the Andover High School to support school budgets and override proposals. We support School Committee candidates with our time, our dollars and our votes.

Please don't imply that we are selfish and uncaring. It is insulting and untrue.

To say simply that "we've been talking about this issue for years" does not constitute a forum for public involvement, nor does a line item on a meeting agenda. If the committee sincerely welcomes public involvement in any decision-making process then it must establish a mechanism for that process to begin. There are hundreds of individuals ready, willing and very, very able to help solve the overcrowding problem in our schools. We are imploring you to let us help. All you have to do is unlock the door. I urge you to establish a task force which will draw upon the wealth of talent and ideas available in the town of Andover to address this serious issue. Our children deserve nothing less.

Andover as she remembers it

Editor, Townsmen:

I was delighted to see Jim Doherty's book, Andover As I Remember It, prominently displayed at the Andover Bookstore during the Christmas holidays. Since Jim and I are native Andoverites of the same Paleolithic Age - i.e., the years immediately following World War I - this nostalgic sighting set my own memorist's juices flowing. But somehow my recollections of Andover kept ending up as a backdrop to my old St. Augustine's schoolmate, front and center. The fun inevitably was in remembering Jim.

St. A's then wasn't all that different from what it is today - a monument to disciplined, first-rate academics at the elementary level and (at recess only) schoolyard mayhem. (Where else could one find an in-school New Year's Eve sleepover with dancing, movies, pillow fights, and all the other ingredients of a traditional pre-adolescent fun fest without the neighbors across the street even knowing there was a sleepover?)

Still, 60-odd years haven't left St. A's altogether unscathed. Gone now is that great teaching order, the nuns of Notre Dame de Namurs, a wimpled, black-habited cadre of peace-keepers, who drilled us in math, geography, spelling and sentence structure and (barely) kept us honest.

Jim's big brother, Bill, may have been St. A's first alumnus, might have one-upped the WASP competition by getting a new school named after him, but Jim, too, was a legend in his time.

He had an outrageous, but engaging chutzpah that enthralled us younger girls and kept temporarily at bay even the order's most formidable, unforgiving nuns. Not for him the sudden, sharp crack on the noggin with the admonitory wooden "signal" of a sister patrolling the classroom aisles. Not for him a visit to the mythic basement "rack" where repeat offenders were given their comeuppance.

Better than anything else, Jim's favorite classroom shtick defines him in my memory: When called on to recite, he would rise from his seat, slowly, momentarily, and take a surprise turn into the adjacent coatroom. (To consider a suitably weighty response? To clear his brain of irrelevant cobwebs? We never knew.) Then, in his own good time, he would return to deliver a 100-percent-correct answer, while the presiding sister feigned disapproval and the girls in the class tittered adoringly.

I haven't had time yet to check it out, but I doubt that Jim's memoir contains this photograph lurking somewhere in this household's accumulation of 20 years: The scene is a costumed garden party given by my mother to benefit the Knights of Columbus. All St. A's kids and, I'm sure a few envious interlopers, are on hand to say "cheese," but Jim stands out. Got up as Peter Pan, ramrod straight, arms folded, he's in the swing position in the front row, staring down the "birdie" as if it were Captain Hook himself.

When eighth-grade honors were passed out, Jim predictably walked off with General Excellence. My older brother, Jack, his classmate, came in an ignominious second with a little something called Greatest Improvement. Coached by those incredible nuns for the PA entrance exams, Jack went on to Phillips, Harvard, and a Phi Beta Kappa key. During the war, he served as a first lieutenant in Army intelligence, having become fluent in three other languages besides English. Out of his experiences in North Africa and the Italian peninsula, grew a novel, The Gallery, published in 1947 under his full three-spondees name, John Horne Burns. It was a big popular and critical success in its day and for several decades thereafter. But fame can flee, and time even faster. Jack died in August 1953, in Livorno, Italy, of a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 37.

After college and the service, Jim remained in Andover, there to make his mark as a maven of Doherty Insurance and Real Estate (for it has been truly spoken, "The Dohertys know the Andovers"), a presence in local Democratic politics and our celebrated town moderator. Most of our St. A's schoolmates have departed, geographically if not otherwise, but a few remain with, I'm certain, even more engrossing Jim anecdotes. If not already interviewed, we may smoke them out yet - in Volume 2 of Andover As I Remember It.

Mark McQuillan impressed him

Editor, Townsmen:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the School Committee and Superintendent McQuillan for the "Town Meeting" style forum on redistricting held at Doherty Auditorium on Jan. 7. I was impressed with Superintendent McQuillan's commitment to quality and equitable education for all Andover students. I also admire his willingness to explore alternative plans recommended by the parents.

After hearing the concerns voiced and options offered on Tuesday, I feel now is the time for Andover to develop a long-term solution rather than make a quick decision we may regret in the future.

A few key points expressed during the forum are: 1. In the past, annual increases in state aid to cities and towns could be factored into the operating budget. This has changed. Chairman Outwin reminded us of the uncertainty of level state funding in the coming years and what effect reductions might have. 2. Despite late approval by the School Committee, Shawsheen's Integrated Primary Program still managed to attract 116 students. 3. $75,000 worth of improvements to Shawsheen does not seem a realistic figure for the renovations outlined. 4. Parents, teachers, students were pleased with the Early Childhood Development Program held at Shawsheen for four years. 5. Re-establishing the Central School District offers stability to that area while reducing systemwide overcrowding.

If we commit to establishing Shawsheen as a K-5 school and state funding is reduced, what will be cut? Will we open Shawsheen as a K-5 only to face a reduction in the educational staff and still have large student/teacher ratios? Have we given the open enrollment plan presently established at Shawsheen enough time to succeed?

I am strongly in favor of maintaining the present school system structure. In these uncertain economic times, school additions, renovations, additional busing costs associated with redistricting and portable classrooms should be carefully considered for lasting results. A quick-fix solution must be avoided. Susan Dalton related Andover's past financial support of well conceived educational plans. Now is the time to devise a long-term solution addressing overcrowding, a changing population and financial realities. This blueprint should have the input and support of the Board of Selectmen, Zoning Board, School Committee, the educational community and residents, with consideration given to students and elderly alike.

Mr. Hubbel suggests a lack of public interest in the educational system. I tend to agree with him. I'm embar-en him out of the car," the chief said.

Any time a spare officer is available, he or she will be assigned to foot duty downtown, according to the chief, who said one aim is high visibility for police.

"We're in the process of setting up a new patrol procedure to be more responsive to the citizens of the community," Chief Johnson said Tuesday.

The chief said the department is working on a plan to give officers more discretion in the geographic areas where they work.

Contract talks continue

Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, told selectmen Monday night that, after a meeting last Friday, an agreement on a patrolmen's contract is again close at hand.

"We have the basics of a tentative agreement," Mr. Stapczynski said.

The two sides had reached a tentative agreement at least once previously, about a year ago, before final offers were rejected by both sides and talks fell apart.

An arbitrator is in charge of the current negotiations. The sides meet again this Tuesday, Jan. 21.

The current negotiations are for a three-year contract for fiscal years 1990, 1991 and 1992, which would end this June 30. Talks have not even begun for another three-year contract for the period beginning July 1, 1992.

rassed to say it took the redistricting issue to get me involved. I heard several residents offer their assistance Tuesday night and I will make that same offer.

To the School Committee: You have our attention now. Don't eliminate us from the decision-making process and lose the momentum you have strived so hard to obtain. Let's utilize the talent offered to design an equitable and abiding solution.

Understanding Chiropractic

QUITE A NERVE!

Those who exercise with their hands in unusual positions, such as tennis players and cyclists, may be prone to ulnar nerve problems. This nerve, which runs along the outside of the arm and enters the hand on the side of the little fingers, is the one which creates the "funny bone" sensation when bumped. A person can subject the ulnar nerve to undue vibration and pressure by holding a bicycle's handlebars with the hands locked at a 90-degree angle or constantly hitting a tennis ball. As a result, numbness and tingling may be experienced in the ring and little fingers and/or grip strength may weaken. The irritated nerve may also cause shooting pain along the forearm or upper arm. Treatment may consist of exercise, changes of techniques or biomechanics.

If you have pain, stress, headaches, numbness, or have been injured, please call us for an evaluation. We offer safe and natural adjustments for all ages at DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042, for an appointment. We accept only those patients we sincerely feel we can help. Our office is located at 15 Central Street.

P.S. Nerve irritation may result from under-developed muscle in the nerve area.

DRUG-FREE BETTER HEALTH

One of the hottest topics of discussion in our office is Posture.

Bad posture conjures up images of a young girl or boy with slumping shoulders or perhaps an adult with osteoporosis causing their back to bend out of position.

In most cases the progression from good posture to bad posture is slow and unnoticed. When detected early postural problems are more easily treatable.

Your posture is certainly related to your health. As your posture worsens, the likelihood of spinal arthritis increases. Nerves become irritated and will function abnormally. Nerves control every structure and function in your body. The parts of your body that will be affected depend on which nerves are irritated.

You need to realize that bad posture and spinal arthritis can be stopped in the adult and prevented in the child. As a Doctor of Chiropractic I assist my patients in accomplishing their health goals by improving nerve function. When nerves function properly your body will function as well as it possibly can. If you're concerned about the posture of your child or children, call us and we'll check it.

Your office for drug-free better health is located just outside the center of town in the Rose Glen Ice Cream building. Call us for your appointment.

Pothier's goal pushes AHS icemen to win over Dracut

By Rick Harrison

Chris Pothier's unassisted goal with nine seconds left in the middle period broke open a tie game, propelling the Andover High hockey team past Dracut 5-2 at Merrimack College as the Golden Warriors salvaged a split of two recent Merrimack Valley Conference contests.

Three days earlier an injury-riddled and flurried AHS crew had lost 6-1 to a superior Billerica High squad at the Hallenborg Pavilion.

Coach Bill Cullen's crew approached the halfway point in the schedule with a 5-3-1 overall record, including 3-2-1 in the Small School Division where Andover started the week one point ahead of a Tewksbury team with three games in hand.

"The kids are playing very hard," said Cullen. "The forwards are going to the net more, and as a group we're skating well and showing good aggressiveness."

The locals stepped out of league play last night to face Malden High at the Laconte Rink in Medford, and they return to the MVC wars with two more away contests Saturday and next Wednesday.

The first of two showdowns with seven-time reigning Small School champ Tewksbury is slated for Saturday at the Janas Rink in Lowell (6 p.m.), and the Warriors travel to Haverhill Wednesday night (8 p.m.).

Billerica, 6-1
The Indians, whose illustrious ice history includes a pair of State Division 2 titles and 16 league championships, came alive in the second period with four goals.

Andover had inched ahead 1-0 on senior right wing Bill Owens's unassisted goal in the opening stanza, and that's how it stayed until Billerica (5-1-1) erupted in the middle session.

Jonathan Duggan and Bill Powers led the assault with two goals apiece, and the home team added a pair of tallies in the third period to win going away.

"Billerica was the better team, but we clearly had more ice packs than healthy bodies on the ride home," said Coach Cullen.

Bobby Sheehan and Chris Pothier both suffered injuries in the game.

Sheehan, the team's top center, went down with a painful hip flexor problem on the second shift. He tried to play against Dracut but couldn't, and his return was listed day-to-day.

Pothier was hit in the chest with a stick late in the Billerica contest, sustaining a bad bruise, but he was back for Dracut.

Owens was slowed by a charleyhorse, and the flu either hampered or sidelined Captain Todd Allard, sophomore defenseman Dan Trede and sophomore wing Doug Lottatore.

"Billerica was more skilled but we certainly were not at full strength," noted Cullen.

The Indians finished with a wide 48-12 shooting advantage, as senior goaltender Mike Daley came up with a 42-save performance to keep it respectable.

Andover, 5-2

The Warriors bounced back smartly against a struggling Dracut (1-7-0) team, with key offensive contributions from Bill Owens and Chris Pothier.

Owens continued sniping with his sixth and

JV hockey team has perfect record

By Rick Harrison

Andover High's hockey future appears to be secure with the junior varsity team recently passing the midway point of its season sporting a perfect 9-0-0 record.

The young Warriors have outscored the opposition by a wide 53-11 margin while chalking up consecutive victories over Dracut (8-1), Chelmsford (4-1), Masconomet Regional (9-1), Wilmington (4-3), Central Catholic (3-2), Lowell (8-1), Methuen (6-2), Tewksbury (5-0) and Wilmington a second time (6-0).

Craig Edwards also works with the Addressa line, and spare forwards are Mike Blanchette and Eric Marquis.

The fourth trio, aptly dubbed "The Munchkin Line," consists of feisty, fiery freshmen Jeff Pothier, Ryan Moynihan and Scott Munroe.

The six defensemen are Dan Hansberry, Matt Johnson, Mike Mazza, Peter O'Shea, John Brodine and Mike Dalton.

Five different goaltenders have been used: Phil Smith, Fred Sunderland, Peter Afarian, Jason Veilleux and Seth Patterson.

Scott Sullivan is the team scoring leader, and the recent back-to-back shutouts were chalked up by Sunderland (Tewksbury) and Veilleux (Wilmington).

The junior varsity chased its 10th straight victory earlier this week at Dracut, and returns to action Sunday afternoon (1:30 p.m.) against Methuen.

Bill Blackwell is the assistant coach.

AHS ski team splits season-opening tri-meet

By Rick Harrison

Amy Heseltine remained in a class by herself on the slopes, winning both races as the Andover High girls' ski team split a season-opening North Shore League tri-meet against Bishop Fenwick of Peabody and Haverhill High at the Bradford Hill Ski Area.

Andover coasted past Fenwick 84-51 and bowed 77-58 to surprising Haverhill.

The two victories extended Heseltine's impressive league win streak through 12 straight races, and she has never finished lower than second place during her four-year varsity career.

The Lady Warriors swept the top four places against Fenwick, with Heseltine clocked in a swift 22.44 seconds.

The AHS tri-captain was followed down the hill by senior Scandinavian exchange student Yanetta San-taio of Finland (23.24), who made an impressive American interscholastic debut, sophomore Colleen Sherry (26.59) and senior Captain Jen Letch (26.70).

The 1-2 sweep by Heseltine and Santaio also continued another awesome Andover streak, the Lady Warriors taking the first two places in every league meet for the past four years. Amy Heislein and Amy Heseltine did it for two seasons, Heseltine and Debbie Shea perpetuated the streak last winter, and Santaio should keep it going this year.

Other top finishers against Fenwick were junior Kirstin Nowell (9th, 26.89), sophomore Heather Whiles (10th, 27.12), senior Captain Andrea Rizzo (13th, 27.38), junior Missy Letch (14th, 27.90) and freshman Christine Durant (15th, 28.22).

Sherry was 8th overall against

Lady Warriors stretch win streak to four games

By Rick Harrison

Defensive intensity was the key as the Andover High girls' basketball team stretched its win streak to four games, and continued breathing down Merrimack Valley Conference Large School Division leader Haverhill's neck with victories over Dracut (45-28) and Chelmsford (51-30).

"We have a tendency to be lethargic early in our games," said Lady Warriors' Coach George Sullivan. "Maybe our girls feel sorry for the opponent. But hard-working defense eventually pumps us up and gets us going."

The sweep enabled the AHS girls to enter this week 4-1 in league play (Haverhill is 5-0) and 6-2 overall.

Lindsey Sweeney led the team in scoring through eight games with 83 points, including a single-season school-record seven three-pointers.

Grace Perry, who has turned on the juice the last two weeks, has 81 points, Kerry Hagerty 63 and Zahia Kattar 59.

Through seven games the Lady Warriors were shooting 32 percent from the floor, just under 60 percent from the free throw line, and averaging 36 rebounds, 10 assists, 28 defensive plusses (steals, deflections, etc.) and only 14 turnovers per game.

"I'll take the shooting figures. They're not that bad," said Sullivan. "And the turnover ratio is excellent considering we run a fast-break offense."

The Lady Warriors returned to action earlier this week against a respectable Tewksbury team that upset Methuen (45-40) earlier this season. Tomorrow night AHS is at Lowell (5-2) for a 6 p.m. contest, and next Tuesday back home to host

Girls' gymnastics team nails Dracut, Chelmsford

By Rick Harrison

It's not too early to get excited about the 1992 Andover High girls' gymnastics team.

Establishing themselves as the clear-cut favorite to break Dracut's decade-long stranglehold on the Merrimack Valley Conference, the Lady Warriors rocked the nine-time defending league champions 133.05 to 125.90 behind spectacular performances from freshman sensation Marcie Lutsch and established veterans Kasie Kearins and Tania Pierce.

It was only the third MVC dual meet loss for Dracut in nine years, with the last coming on January 9, 1990 to Andover by a 127.90 to 126.70 score.

Kearins, Pierce and Michelle Black triggered that upset, and the Lady Warriors went on to post an 8-1-0 record and share the MVC title with Dracut and Chelmsford (the only time since 1983 the Middies did not win the championship outright).

This latest setback left Dracut, a two-time state champ (1989, '90) at 1-1-0 overall.

Andover avoided a letdown after the major victory, roaring back last Monday night to beat nemesis Chelmsford for the first time in several years, 131.15 to 125.00, as Kasie Kearins, Tania Pierce and Marcie Lutsch were again superb.

Chelmsford was the team that denied AHS a perfect season two years ago, edging the Lady Warriors 126.70 to 124.55.

Those two crucial league victories, coupled with a second forfeit triumph in two years over Londonderry, enabled AHS to already assume sole possession of first place in the MVC standings at 2-0-0.

Overall the Lady Warriors are 3-0-0 as they prepare to host league foe Lowell High tomorrow afternoon (4 p.m.) at the Dunn Gymnasium.

The 133.05 score against Dracut, which is believed to be a school record, is also among the best in the state this season and immediately thrusts Andover into the state title picture.

With their tremendous depth, balance and talent there is every reason to believe the Lady Warriors will qualify for the North Sectionals and be among the favorites to win the State team championship this year.

Should AHS go all the way it would be the first State title in girls' gymnastics since 1970, when both the Andover girls and boys won to complete an extremely rare one-school sweep of both Massachusetts crowns.

Unlimited potential

"The girls are very excited about the season ahead," said Coach Julie Curtis. "They realize what we're capable of accomplishing, and the big thing now is to remain consistent and maintain the high level of competition and achievement.

"Our early scores are comparable with those of other teams favored to make the state finals," continued Coach Curtis. "Beverly (defending champ) and Dracut (1991 runnerup) are both down just a little and we are definitely up.

"The girls were pumped for the Dracut meet. We were almost there (state's top echelon) each of the last two years, and now we've broken through for sure."

What helped the Lady Warriors' confidence against usually invincible Dracut was a "phantom meet" with Londonderry.

Anne Milmo steadies herself on the balance beam during the meet against Dracut.

Marcie Lutsch placed first on the uneven bars (8.65 score), balance beam (8.45) and in vaulting (8.40) that day, while Kasie Kearins scored a personal-best 8.8 to win the floor exercise.

Other encouraging individual efforts were a sharp 8.4 on the beam by Tania Pierce and an 8.25 in floor exercise from Anne Milmo.

Kasie compiled a 33.55 all-around score and Tania was right on her heels at 33.00. Fabulous freshman

The addition of Lutsch and several other fabulous freshmen, notably Irene Shui and

"They didn't show up, but since the judges were there we went through all our routines just as if it were a regular meet," explained Coach Curtis. "We kept score and critiqued the performances."

Andover finished with a 130.95, and even though it was unofficial it was the first time AHS had reached the magic 130 mark.

"We sat around after the 'phantom meet' for awhile, and the girls reflected on what they had just done. That's when it hit them just how good they really are."

Lisa Cincotta, has provided the extra push necessary.

"These freshmen are amazing," said Andover boys' Coach Steve Sirois. "They've lit a fire under the whole team and pushed the veterans to work even harder. If the girls are going to do it (State title) this is the year, while the blend is still there (freshmen with Kasie, Tania and Sarah)."

Lutsch, a 15-year-old ninth grader whose flying dismount on the bars against Dracut quickly marked her as a fearless competitor, is a product of the Danvers Yellowjackets club team for whom she has competed several years.

She has the potential to be one of the best ever at Andover High.

"Marcie has a lot of 'strive' (desire)," said Coach Curtis. "She wants to succeed, she's talented and she's willing to try almost any move on the apparatus."

"She's very peppy and gets the whole team going. Her floor exercise music is 'In The Mood' and that describes her perfectly."

"I had never seen her compete before our first practice, but I knew her name because some of the other girls had told me what she could do. But I still thought 'wow!' the first time I saw her perform."

"Marcie is strong in every event and just needs to tighten up some of her routines," noted Coach Curtis.

Lutsch will occasionally compete as an all-around to give Kasie Kearins, Tania Pierce, Sarah Faraci and Anne Milmo a break.

Barring unforeseen circumstances the only team now standing between Andover and the MVC title would appear to be Methuen, whom the Lady Warriors will face January 31 at the Methuen Field House (4 p.m.).

Andover-Dracut

In fairness to the Middies, they were missing all-around standout Paula Cronk who placed fifth in the State Individual Meet last year and had scored 35.50 all-around in Dracut's season-opener against Billerica.

Bob Ellis leads boys' gym team at tri-meet

By Rick Harrison

The young and building Andover High boys' gym team had several impressive performances in its season-opening North Shore League tri-meet against Salem, N.H. and Lincoln-Sudbury.

Perennial power Salem swept the meet with a 125.00 score, while Lincoln-Sudbury split with a 92.30 and Andover was third at 90.50.

Leading the way for Coach Steve Sirois's squad was freshman Bob Ellis with a 7.8 in vaulting and 5.0 in floor exercise.

Sophomore Nick Zammuto scored a 6.2 in floor, sophomore Joe Shea 5.1 on the pommel horse, sophomore Matt Fenton 5.1 on rings, freshman Jeff Arsenault 4.5 in floor, Scott Nicholson 4.4 on rings, senior Co-Captain Seth Derosier 4.3 on parallel bars and sophomore Chris Sintros 4.0 on the high bar.

The Golden Warriors had a big void to fill when senior Co-Captain Matt McClune was unable to attend the meet.

Andover did not enter an all-around competitor.

The Golden Warriors return to the gym tomorrow (5 p.m.) with a tri-meet at Newton North against non-league foe Attleboro High and North Shore rival Newton North.

Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m. crosstown rival Phillips Academy will be at the Dunn Gymnasium for a non-league dual meet.

In an AHS boys' gymnastics' alumni note, former all-around standout Jason Fox (Class of '90) is now a sophomore at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst and competes as the 11th man on an outstanding Minuteman squad.

Saturday afternoon crosstown rival Phillips Academy will be at the Dunn Gymnasium for a non-league dual meet.

Boys' track record improves; girls suffer second setback

By Rick Harrison

Last year the final dual meet of the Merrimack Valley Conference season between the Andover and Lowell girls decided the league championship.

It could be an instant replay, with a change in gender, this season.

Barring an upset along the way, the finale between Lowell and Andover on Monday, February 3 at the Lowell High Field House could determine whether or not the Golden Warrior boys earn a share of the title with Lowell and/or Central Catholic.

Last week Steve Shepard's double win kept the AHS boys on a roll, 54-32 over Billerica, as they remained within striking distance of undefeated MVC Large-School co-leaders Lowell and Central (who collide January 30).

The news was not as pleasant for the Lady Warriors, however, as they were stunned 44-42 by their previously-winless Billerica counterparts.

Those results hiked the boys' overall record to 4-1-0, including three straight wins, while the girls suffered their second consecutive setback and fell to 2-2-0.

It's the first time in two years the Lady Warriors have dropped back-to-back meets, and this was only their third loss in the last 14 indoor duals.

McCue, Lavoie champs

Hurdlers Jason McCue and Stacy Lavoie added strong individual performances in big weekend meets, McCue placing first in the 55-meter hurdles at the State Coaches Invitational and Lavoie winning the 50-yard hurdles in meet record time at the Northern Area Girls' Freshman-Sophomore Championships.

Both Andover teams were in for a rugged test yesterday as they battled crosstown rival Phillips Academy and Alvirne High of Hudson, N.H. in a non-league tri-meet.

Next Monday MVC action resumes when the locals face North Reading at the Methuen High Field House (10 a.m.).

Andover boys, 54-32

The Warriors, whose only loss was to Central Catholic (45-41) when Andover was shorthanded, dominated Billerica by winning seven events and finishing 1-2 in the 1000, two-mile and shot put.

AHS swimmers halt Lions' streak

"Somebody said that it couldn't be done," but they did it.

Since the inception of men's swimming in the Merrimack Valley Conference in 1986, the Lions of Chelmsford have gone undefeated. That streak came to a halt last Friday afternoon at the Greater Lawrence Technical School pool as the Golden Warriors of Andover High School swept to a 105-81 victory, setting four new school records in the process.

The meet see-sawed back and forth by one or two points after each event. Chelmsford's diving corps gave the Lions a six-point lead after the diving competition.

Senior co-capt. Matt "Cheeze" Jennings, Brian "Maybs" Mayberry, Matt "Plug" Liberty and freshman Adam

Schoen began the meet by breaking the oldest record on the books when they went 1:48.27 in the 500-yard freestyle to eclipse the mark set in 1987.

They repeated the feat in the 400-yard free relay by clipping two seconds off last year's mark to record a 3:31.34 to capture the race.

Schoen won the 200-yard free in a 1:58.02 sectional qualifying time. Adam "Flad" Robb was third with 2:01.90, also a "Q" time, and senior Dave Bevacqua was fifth in a seasonal best.

Jennings won the 200-yard individual medley in 2:08.38 with Chris Blongiewicz finishing with a personal best of 2:13.97. Jennings' time was a state cut while Blongiewicz made sectionals.

Mayberry, who began chipping away at the varsity record in the 50 free last year, whittled down the time doing a 22.96 as he was just nipped at the wall for first. Senior co-capt. Chris DeMartino was third in a sectional qualifying 24.72. Greg Davie scored fifth-place points with a 26.91.

Freshman Dave Burke finished third in the diving competition with his first state qualifying score of 169.60. Ian "Sak" Sakowich upped his total 15 points from last meet to place fifth.

The 100-yard butterfly was a record-setting race all around. Liberty won in a new school record time of 54.62. Trailing at the 75-yard mark, "Plug" pulled even with his long-time Chelmsford rival and caught him at the wall for the victory.

archival and nemesis Methuen (6-2) at the Dunn Gymnasium (7:30 p.m.).

Andover, 45-28

The locals were never in real danger against Dracut, leading 26-13 at the half, but not until senior guards Melissa "Silk" McNamara and Grace "Slick" Perry began playing aggressive down-and-dirty defense did Andover come alive.

"It took Melissa and Grace to snap us out of it," said Coach Sullivan. "Mac came in and changed the tempo to our style, creating turnovers that led to steals and layups. She finished with nine defensive plusses and Perry had eight."

Perry led the offense as well with 16 points, including 4-of-7 at the charity stripe, while junior forward Kerry Hagerty reached doubles with 12 points and also pulled down seven rebounds.

Hagerty is still the Lady Warriors' most consistent all-around player, shooting 40 percent from the floor, 60 percent from the line and averaging nine defensive plusses per game.

Senior center Stephanie Kupa tossed in eight points and collected nine rebounds. Tri-Captain Zahia Kattar had three points, McNamara two free throws, junior guard Amy Cassidy two points and Lindsey Sweeney two points.

Sweeney once again proved totally unselfish as she passed out 10 assists and had seven defensive plusses.

The team was 13-for-28 at the foul line.

Andover, 51-30

Chelmsford, with just one win under its belt, trailed only 20-17 after 16 minutes on its own floor.

Pothier's goal pushes icemen to victory

seventh goals of the season, while Pothier had the pivotal tiebreaker.

After a scoreless first period, highlighted by Dracut junior goaltender Frank Trouville's 11 saves, Owens put Andover ahead 34 seconds into the middle frame by tipping home junior rear-guard Justin Hesenius's blueline blast.

MVHL scoring leader Shawn Nangle (8-12-20) tied it 46 seconds later, however, beating AHS junior netminder Chris Addressa to cap a 2-on-1 breakaway.

Owens re-established the AHS advantage at 6:01 with a nifty unassisted, short-handed goal. He stole the puck in the neutral zone and faked out both Trouville and a Middies' defender before scoring.

Dracut pulled even a second time at 11:21 when Dan Purtell netted his first varsity goal, but Pothier gave the Warriors a lead they never again relinquished at the 14:51 mark.

Effective and tenacious forechecking by Andover enabled Pothier to gather up a loose puck, pull a Dracut defenseman out and deposit his fifth goal over Trouville's left shoulder.

After outshooting the Middies 16-4 in the second period, Andover held an 11-3 edge in the final stanza when sophomore Paul Allard and sophomore defenseman Brian Addressa notched the insurance goals.

Allard's came on the powerplay, with crisp passing by Hesenius and Dan Trede allowing the versatile forward-defenseman to skate in from the left boards and slide the puck past Trouville at 6:54.

Addressa's first varsity goal at 10:34 was unassisted and unexpected.

He was skating through center ice when Coach Cullen called for a line change. Addressa unloaded from the red line and his shot beat the startled Middies' goaltender high to the stick side.

Chris Addressa finished with 10 saves and Trouville had 33 as Andover managed a wide 38-12 shooting edge.

Warriors dominate on b'ball court

By Rick Harrison

Maintaining its lofty perch at the top of the Merrimack Valley Conference Large School Division, up where the air is rare, the Andover High boys' varsity basketball team toyed with Dracut and then put together its best effort of the season against Chelmsford last week.

The 55-49 score was not indicative of the way the Golden Warriors dominated Dracut.

"We were ahead by 14 or 15 points most of the game," said Coach Dave Fazio, who directed the Middies' hoop fortunes for two years prior to taking the Andover job. "We played everybody and the final margin was the closest they came."

"He (Coach Tom Gallagher) does a nice job with that team. They're very scrappy, but we could have won by 20 points."

Chelmsford (1-6) never had a chance against the locals as AHS rolled, 65-47.

"The intensity was there for at least 30 of the 32 minutes," noted Fazio. "We had a couple lapses, but what I saw was a conscious effort by our kids to adhere to the system."

"I felt a heckuva lot better about the way things are going after that game."

The Warriors entered this week riding a three-game win streak, 5-0 in the league and 6-2 overall.

Haverhill is a game behind at 4-1 while Billerica, Central Catholic and struggling Lowell have two MVC losses apiece.

The locals, who played Tewksbury earlier this week, have a key clash tomorrow night at Lowell (7:30 p.m.) and then return home Sunday afternoon to host non-league Somerville (3 p.m.).

"I guess Lowell is having its troubles, but there's nothing like the sight of an Andover team to wake Lowell up," cautioned Fazio.

Sean Ryan has 168 points after eight games, a 21.0 average, while Chris Shea has 107 and Kevin Ring 73.

Andover, 55-49

The tri-captains led the way, as they should, with double digit contributions from Sean Ryan, Chris Shea and Kevin Ring.

Ryan had 15 points to go with seven steals and three assists. Shea hit 5-of-8 floor shots and finished with 12 points, six rebounds, and Ring chipped in 11 points, five boards and three assists.

Junior forward Mark Lastrina had eight points and six rebounds, sophomore guard Kirk Stockwood and sophomore forward Toby Guzowski four points each, and junior swingman Dave Gardner one free throw.

Senior guard Matt Harris dished off three assists, and senior guard Chris Lembo did another nice job defensively while pulling down three rebounds.

Dracut converted 21 free throws.

Andover, 65-47

Sean Ryan stepped forward and took charge completely against Chelmsford.

"It was definitely Sean's finest game," said Coach Fazio. "He ran the show, distributing the ball and selecting his shots wisely."

Seventeen of his game-high 23 points came in the second half, as Ryan went 3-for-5 from treyland, his usual 8-for-9 from the free throw line, and added four assists and three steals.

Fazio also credited Kevin Ring with his best game, the senior forward providing a flashback to late last season with 12 points, eight rebounds and three assists.

"Kevin asserted himself," said the coach. Chris Shea also had 12 points, hitting 5-for-

Two AHS athletes named to Boston Globe All-Scholastic teams

Eric Greenstein, a senior at Andover High School, was named to the 1991 Boston Globe All-Scholastic football team.

A four-year starter and three-time all-league selection, Greenstein completed his scholastic career by leading his team in tackles (126), quarterback sacks (12) and recovered fumbles (four). His career numbers were 267 tackles, 22 sacks, 11 fumble recoveries. Greenstein enjoys writing and would like to continue his gridiron career at a Division I college.

Amy Heseltine, a senior at Andover High School, was named to the 1991 Boston Globe All-Scholastic girls' soccer team.

The Merrimack Valley Conference MVP is a repeat All-Scholastic selection after scoring four goals and seven assists from her fullback position. Capping a career that featured 10 goals and 13 assists, she was an all-New England pick this year and a select team member. An honor roll student, Heseltine would like to study sports medicine or physical therapy.

The Boston Globe All-Scholastic Awards Program honors high school athletes in eastern Massachusetts who have demonstrated exceptional talent in a particular sport. There are 24 boys' and girls' All-Scholastic teams. The Boston Globe began the All-Scholastic concept in 1901 with the first All-Scholastic football team.

himself when he captured the high jump, with a personal-best leap of 6'2", and the 300 dash (35.8).

Other individual winners, each of whom remained undefeated in his specialty, were senior hurdler and Captain Jason McCue (6.5), senior sprinter and Captain Jamie Damon in the 50 dash (5.7) and senior Captain Mike Giaimo in the 1000 yard run (2:32.7).

Rounding out the first place finishers were junior two-miler Brian Twomey, with a personal best 10:37.0 clocking, and junior shot putter J.P. Ciruso (42'0").

Runners-up for the mighty Warriors were sophomore two-miler Dan Buchholz (11:13.0), junior Colin Arsenault who suffered his first loss in the 600 to Indians' standout Corey Cameron (1:19.9), freshman Matt Ely in the 1000 run (2:33.9), Captain Jeremy Roux in the mile (5:08.2) and junior shot putter Brian Adams (39'3").

Arsenault (1:20.9) and Ely both turned in personal best times.

"Colin probably made a strategic error when he tried to pass (Cameron) on the turn, instead of when he came out of the turn, but it was still an excellent race for him," noted Coach Iworsley.

Andover third place scorers were senior sprinters Jim Landry in the 50 dash (5.9) and Jason Hastings in the 300 dash (36.7), Kevin Murphy and Ryan Morgan who tied in the 600 run with identical personal-best times of 1:24.6, and miler Mark Adams (5:08.6).

"I was concerned before the meet and thought it would be much closer," said Iworsley. "But we jumped ahead early and just kept building on the lead. Steve Shepard's 6'2" gave us a big emotional lift because it was unexpected."

"If Lowell beats Central I believe we have a good shot (at a title tie). A few of the efforts today, Shepard's high jump and Twomey's two-mile time in particular, make me feel a lot better about matching up (with Lowell)," said Iworsley.

"If we do tie for the title I think everyone, including Central, will admit we're the best team. We would have beaten them if we'd been at full strength."

Billerica girls, 44-42

The Indians (1-20 record) already had this one secured before Andover's crack mile relay quartet of senior Captain Holly Clark, sophomore Stacy Lavoie, senior Captain Jill Ippolito and senior Captain Layne Whitley made it close by winning the final race in 4:36.5.

AHS could manage only three other victories, however, and once again the shot put and high jump hurt as Billerica snagged 14 of a possible 20 points in the two events.

Other Lady Warrior gold medal finishers were Ippolito in the 50 dash (6.4), Clark in the 600 run

(1:35.4) and junior Ellen Sullivan in her first two-mile race of the season (12:38.9).

Earning seconds were Lavoie with a personal-best 7.8 in the hurdles (which she bettered in the Frosh-Sop Meet), sophomore sprinter Sarah Witman with a personal-best 42.1 in the 300 dash, Whitley in the 600 run (1:37.7), junior Heather Holmader in the 1000 run with a PB 3:07.6, junior miler Amanda Holmes (6:03.9) and junior shot putter Suzanne Doucette with a PB toss of 26'3".

Capturing third places were senior two-miler Stephanie Carroll (14:15.4), junior miler Debbie Xifaras (6:20.7), junior Sarah Wallace with a personal-best 3:10.7 in the 1000 run and the trio of junior Sarah Tully, junior Lisa Perdigao and Holly Clark who all cleared 4'0" in the high jump.

"It was a tough loss because the difference in a couple of races was just inches," said Iworsley. "We had one girl who was passed at the last instant and missed third place by a split second. If she finishes third it's a tie (43-43) meet. But these things happen."

State Coaches

Jason McCue gave further evidence he may be headed for a state title this winter, winning the 55-meter hurdles event at Harvard University with a swift personal-best 7.67 clocking.

Two other Andover boys scored, Steve Shepard placing third in the long jump with a 20'5" leap and Jamie Damon taking sixth in the 55-meter dash with a PB of 6.73 seconds.

Just out of the money were Colin Arsenault, seventh in the 600 with a personal-best 1:17.2, and the seventh-place mile relay quartet of McCue, Arsenault, Mike Giaimo and Jon Cirella who crossed in 3:35.9.

Both Shepard (33.9) and Jason Hastings (34.7) won their heats in the 300 dash, but neither qualified for the finals.

Several hundred top track athletes from throughout the state converged on Cambridge to compete in the meet.

Northern Area

Sophomore Stacy Lavoie beat the pack in the 50-yard hurdles at the Northern Area Freshman-Sophomore Meet hosted by Lowell High, establishing one of three new meet records with an outstanding 7.7 time.

The two-lap relay crew of sophomore Melissa Gould, freshman Amy Levesque, freshman Reshida Mack and sophomore Sarah Witman was second in 2:58.0.

Witman also scored individually with a fourth-place finish in the 300 (personal-best 41.7), while sophomore Leigh Clarke was seventh in the 1000 yard run (3:18.4).

Girls' gym team nails Dracut, Chelmsford

Paula and teammate Kathy Quealy both had an unfortunate conflict with a prestigious National college prep meet in Michigan, but had Cronk competed against Andover the score would have been closer but the outcome undoubtedly the same.

The meet became a personal showcase for Marcie Lutsch and spectacular defending State Individual champ Tammy Noel of Dracut.

Both won two events.

Lutsch captured the vaulting with an 8.5 and floor exercise with an 8.8, while Noel scored 9.05 on bars and 8.85 on beam.

Four-year veteran Noel had serious right knee surgery over the summer and competes with a supportive brace covering her entire leg. She did not vault in this meet but added a second place in floor with an 8.65.

Lutsch was the all-around champ with a flashy 34.40, adding a second-place 8.85 on bars and an 8.25 on beam.

Tri-Captain Kasie Kearins was the Lady Warriors' other all-around and, despite a nasty fall on the beam, registered a third place 33.05 that including a tie for second in vaulting (8.1), third in floor (8.5), tie for third on bars (8.6) and a 7.95 on the beam.

Tri-Captain Tania Pierce had a third in vaulting (8.05) and added a solid 8.2 on bars and 7.65 on beam.

Freshman Irene Shui was third on beam (8.45) and scored 7.65 in vaulting.

Junior Anne Milmo had a personal-best 8.3 on the beam and an 8.15 in floor exercise.

Other personal best scores came from senior Tri-Captain Sarah Faraci on bars (8.0), and senior Alicia Dennehy on beam whose 8.2 was approximately a full point higher.

Lisa Cincotta's varsity debut included a fourth-place 8.45 in floor and 7.1 on bars, while Faraci added a 7.8 in floor, sophomore Kerry Brady a 7.1 in floor, junior Amanda Schaae 7.65 in vaulting and senior Deirda DeAngelis 7.4 in vaulting.

Kasie's courage

Halfway through the meet the popular KK took a potentially disastrous spill while trying to perform a difficult somersault maneuver on the beam.

Obviously a little shaken, she got to her feet slowly and climbed back on the beam to finish her routine without a hitch.

Limping noticeably after her dismount, bruised but undaunted Kasie exhibited her intestinal fortitude by finishing the competition with the second place in vaulting and third in floor exercise.

Andover-Chelmsford

Marcie Lutsch won two events for the second straight meet, while Tania Pierce and Kasie Kearins finished 1-2 in the all-around competition, as the Lady Warriors topped the 130 mark for the third straight time.

The freshman flash placed first in vaulting with an 8.45 and floor exercise at 8.85, and she was tied for third on the uneven bars with an 8.45.

Tania Pierce was the all-around winner with a 33.30 and Kasie Kearins was a heartbeat behind at 33.10.

Tania tied for second place on the balance beam with an 8.5, was second in vaulting at 8.05, tied for third on bars at 8.45 and scored 8.3 in floor exercise.

Kasie gave her a run with a second on bars (8.60), third in floor (8.7), third in vaulting (7.85) and a 7.95 on the beam.

Irene Shui tied for second on beam with an 8.5 and Anne Milmo was fourth on beam at 8.1.

"It was the first time in a while we didn't have a single fall on the beam," said Coach Curtis.

Freshman Joan Sunderland also drew praise for a 6.75 score in her first ever competitive floor exercise for AHS.

Chelmsford, who graduated three-year all-around standout Emily Lueck, was led by Lisa Fabbri who nudged Kasie Kearins on bars (8.65), won the beam with an 8.7, and was third all-around at 32.95.

AHS (1-1-0), which raced North Andover and Methuen earlier this week, returns to action on Friday, January 24 against Masconomet Regional and North Andover.

The Andover 'B' squad also split its opening tri-meet, racing past Bishop Fenwick 46-9 and dropping a close 30-25 decision to Haverhill.

Completing a sweep of the top five positions against Fawnick were sophomore Danielle Spires (2nd), senior Melanie McGuire (3rd), junior Sandra Rose (4th) and freshman Erica Endyke (5th). Sophomore Nicole Beauregard was 7th and freshman Joy Sanderson 9th.

Against the Hillies Spires finished 5th, McGuire 6th, Rose 7th and Endyke 10th.

Matt Harris netted seven points, Mark Lastrina had six points and seven boards, Dave Gardner and Kirk Stockwood three points each, and senior forward Mike Pettoruto a free throw.

Stockwood also recorded three assists and four steals.

"Lastrina has been a real surprise, working his way into the starting five, and Pettoruto continues to contribute some quality minutes defensively off the bench," noted Pazio.

"One of the best numbers to emerge from this game was the 39 or 40 points the starters held Chelmsford to before we subbed freely at the end."

Senior guard Mike Murray did a nice job for the Lions with 12 points, six rebounds and three assists, while backcourt partner Dan Olson had nine points and six steals.

Andover sub-varsity

The future continued to look bright as Coach Bob Halem's junior varsity improved to 4-1 and Coach Paul Willis's freshmen moved to 5-0 last week.

"Dino" DeMartino finished third. He not only qualified for sectionals, he swam a personal best time by four seconds, bettered last meet's time by six seconds and narrowly missed state cuts with 1:00.97. "Amazin" Ben Mazin swam a 1:06.72 personal best for a sectional qualifying time and fifth place.

The closest race of the day was the 100 free where Schoen missed first place by .01, swimming a :52.62 for sectional cuts. Manu Sharma was third in :57.74 with Tim Connors going 1:00.39 for fifth.

Liberty was in first in the 500-yard free with a state-qualifying 5:00.41. "Flad" Robb and Chelmsford's top 500 swimmer battled stroke for stroke over the first half of the race. With about 250 yards to go, Robb began to pull slightly ahead on the turns and gutted out the last 50 yards to finish a second ahead of his rival, posting a sectional "Q" time of 5:29.03. Brad Litchfield a six-second drop from last meet, going 6:12.76 to take fifth.

DeMartino, Davie, Robb and Blongiewicz won the 200-yard freestyle in 1:43.52 with Sharma, Bevacqua, Mazin and Connors third with 1:45.90.

Jennings posted a seasonal best of :59.76 in the 100-yard backstroke for a first and a state cut. Blongiewicz's 1:06.25 was a sectional cut for third and Mazin was fifth with a 1:15.55.

Mayberry captured the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:07.21 for sectional cuts. Connors swam a 1:14.14 for third while Davie showed a full second time improvement with a 1:17.18 in fifth.

Schoen, Jennings, Liberty and Mayberry capped the day in the 400-yard freestyle relay with a new team record of 3:31.34. Robb, Connors, DeMartino and Blongiewicz were third in 3:57.95, bringing the final score to 105-81.

Tradition has it that the winning coach usually goes for a swim at championship meets. This may not have been a championship meet, but the occasion was momentous enough to rate a dunking for all three Andover coaches.

A dripping Head Coach Rick "Bat" Battistini was smiles from ear to ear as he praised his swimmers, "I've been waiting and hoping for this for a long time. I'm really proud of our guys and the job they did today. They all swam like real champions. We still have four meets to go but, barring anything unforeseen, we may be looking at a first place in the MVC. I really have to credit Chelmsford. They pushed us every step of the way today with their great bunch of swimmers."

A soggy assistant coach Abby Robb had cheered herself hoarse during the meet and was croaking her congratulations to the team as she passed out the traditional victory lollipops. "I didn't think I'd have this much voice left but it was worth it to see these guys do what they did. They are great."

Volunteer assistant coach Mary Robb concurred, "What a bunch! Everyone gave his best today and it showed in the results. I'm really proud of our divers. Dave came back after a rough dive and earned a state qualifying score and Ian and Greg (fresh Greg Litchfield) both improved their scores, Ian by 15 points and Greg by 30. They were super."

The Warriors play host to Westford Friday at the GLTS pool. The meet begins at 3:30 p.m. The public is invited.

St. Augustine A and B meet in showdown

By Rick Harrison

St. Augustine B and St. Augustine A, who met earlier this week in a first place showdown, set up that battle of the unbeaten by rolling to easy post-holiday victories recently in Andover Church Basketball League Senior Division (7th-8th grade) play at the Andover High gym.

SAB rocked St. Augustine D 36-14 to improve to 4-0, while SAA went to 3-0 by applying the defensive clamps for the third straight game in a 30-8 triumph over St. Augustine C.

St. Robert's (3-1) remained in solid contention with a 45-17 romp over Faith Lutheran.

Jon Adams of St. Robert's is now running away with the division scoring race, boasting 66 points and a 16.5 average after four games. Teammate Ted Witman is a distant second with 35 points and Will Cohen of SAB has 33.

St. Augustine B, 36-14

The winners continued to roll on the strength of balanced scoring and solid rebounding, as nine different players contributed points in the decision over St. Augustine D.

Will Cohen was game-high marksman for SAB with 10 points, while Jeff Danis and Scott Callanan tossed in 6 apiece.

Charlie Russo and Dave Shaffer added a field goal and free throw each, and completing the offense with solo baskets were Mike Couture, Erik DeMarco, Luis Dominguez and Brian Jordan.

Russo and Danis also did yeoman duty on the boards.

Lee Baron and Josh Murphy paced St. Augustine D with six points apiece, Joe Hogarty was held to one bucket, and defensive standouts included Sean Casey and Bucky Dolan.

SAB inched ahead 5-2 after one quarter and broke it open in the second period, riding a 12-4 burst (led by Scott Calanan) to a commanding 17-6 halftime edge.

St. Augustine A, 30-8

SAA, which had allowed only 33 points in its first three games, remained the Senior Division "sleepers" team with another impressive performance.

St. Augustine C managed only two points in the first half and was never a serious threat.

Ernie Dascoli, a strong swingman who likes to drive to the basket, led the victors' assault with 10 points.

Patrick Hess and Mark Langone, both of whom operate well inside, contributed 7 points each while Dan Gosselin netted 4 points and Jason Nicholson 2.

Cory Bishop and Adam Tripi added hustling performances.

Sergio Laudani and Chris Rogers tossed in 4 points apiece for SAC while Tim Dargan, Vandan Kandhi and Jeff Scaia also played well.

China ambassador to speak at Phillips Who is James Lilley?

"They're both in Shandong province in North China," Ms. Washburn said Monday.

Ms. Washburn said her brother will stay with her and her husband, William, when he comes to speak Friday, then will head back to Washington, D.C., where he was recently appointed assistant secretary of defense for international security.

Ms. Washburn told the Townsmen a little bit about her and her brother's early experiences in China.

"We lived there until about 1940," Ms. Washburn said.

Their father worked for Standard Oil Company.

"My brother and I lived both in Qingdao and Tiansin," she said. "He also lived in a city on the Yangtze River with my parents."

They attended both American and British schools at the elementary level. By high school she was in New York and he was at Phillips Exeter Academy.

"I was 15 about when I came here. I think he was about age 11, 12, something like that," Ms. Washburn said.

With their father always moving about in his business, the family didn't really have a home in the United States, Ms. Washburn said. She has been in Andover since 1952. Her brother eventually bought a home in Chevy Chase, Md., where he lives now. In 1954, he was married in Cochran Chapel, where he will speak Friday night.

Ms. Washburn didn't get back to China until she went to visit her brother while he was working there with the Central Intelligence Agency in 1975.

"He was in Beijing with George Bush in 1975 for two years," she said.

"That was my first visit back in 35 years. And Mao was still alive, so things were very different. It was a very strict Communist country and everything was under strict control."

"I went to visit last year again," she said.

Her brother was appointed ambassador to China in 1989, just before the Tiananmen Square uprising.

"He got there just before it broke, within one month," Ms. Washburn said.

She visited their old home in Qingdao and her old school, places she was not allowed to visit in 1975. Ms. Washburn said she saw a different side of China than the average tourist because she was there visiting her brother, and not on a tour.

"It was very interesting," she said.

She had been to Peking, (now Beijing), as a child, again in 1975 and again last year. It was interesting to compare the three different times, she said.

"Needless to say, it has been ruined," Ms. Washburn said.

Would she return?

"I don't have any particular yen to go back right away," she said.

She would like to see some things, but there are too many other places in the world to visit, she said.

"And the cities of China are certainly not what they used to be," Ms. Washburn said.

Ms. Washburn said she has heard her brother speak on Tiananmen Square, "and he did a terrific job."

He outlined what had been going on in China prior to Tiananmen Square and goes right on through his term of service. That includes dealing with a dissident who hid in the American Embassy after the uprising, the negotiations to get him out and the aftermath, she said.

"He doesn't mince words about it either," Ms. Washburn said.

Mr. Lilley left his position as ambassador to China last June after two years. He was a visiting fellow at the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University this past fall.

He has visited his sister here off and on, and his oldest son attended PA.

James Roderick Lilley, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to China, was born in Qingdao, China, Jan. 15, 1928. He served in the U.S. Liaison office in Beijing from 1973 to 1975.

Mr. Lilley was the American ambassador to the Republic of Korea from 1986 to 1989 and deputy assistant secretary for East Asian and Pacific Affairs at the Department of State from April 1985 to October 1986.

He has worked in a number of American missions in East Asia, including the Philippines, Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Japan and Hong Kong. He attended the National Defense University in Washington in 1972. Mr. Lilley was appointed national intelligence officer for China in 1975, the senior post in the American intelligence community. He was political coordinator and senior East Asian specialist on the National Security Council in 1981. From September 1984 to March 1985 he worked as a consultant on international security affairs in the Department of Defense. And for many years he worked in the CIA.

In his non-governmental career, Mr. Lilley taught courses on Chinese economics at Johns Hopkins School for Advanced International Studies for three years. He was a consultant and/or representative for several companies with business interests in East Asia. He served as director of the American Institute in Taiwan from 1982 to 1984. He is a member of the Metropolitan Club of Washington, D.C., the Royal Bangkok Sports Club in Bangkok, Thailand, and the American Club in Hong Kong. Mr. Lilley received a bachelor's degree in 1951 from Yale University and a master's degree from George Washington University in 1971. He studied classical Chinese at Hong Kong and Columbia universities. Mr. Lilley and his wife, Sally Booth Lilley, have three sons.

After being open for a few months ... Silverado Athletic Club makes expansion plans

There's no doubt about it - fitness is becoming a way of life for more and more Americans each day. "Physically-fit people generally live longer, perform better and get more out of life," says Christine Estabrook, owner of Silverado Athletic Club in Andover.

"People are finding out for themselves that taking charge of your health relates to your general sense of well-being more strongly than any other variable. It's very contagious."

That is definitely the case with her brand new health club that opened last fall. "We've only been open a few months and I'm already making plans for expansion. We welcome new members every day - it's a dream come true."

Silverado Athletic Club is located at 63 Park St. and caters to women only, promoting fitness and providing professional instruction on exercise to its members.

Ms. Estabrook capitalizes on this "club specialty" concept in two ways: 1. Silverado is a health club for women only. It is the only one of this kind in the Merrimack Valley region. By offering wellness services to women only, Silverado provides an environment for women who prefer the types of permissiveness, comfort and privacy that cannot be offered by a coed facility; and 2. Ms. Estabrook is a recognized leader in the fitness industry. She is also a certified public accountant, with nine years of management experience, employed by Big Eight accounting organizations and Fortune 500 companies.

It is her financial and management background that gives her an advantage over other less experienced health club owners.

Silverado's business practices are premised on a growing trend in the nation's fitness industry; to maximize profit potential, whether in a strong or weakened economy, successful health clubs are developing niches in the industry.

Rather than operating a huge multi-use facility where both direct and indirect costs can be astronomical and difficult to control, a specialized facility can be monitored much easier, thereby substantially increasing its cost effectiveness.

'My club is only as good as the members' perception. They are a vital link to the success of Silverado. I try to treat each member as if they were my only member. It's paying off and I couldn't be happier.'

Christine Estabrook Owner, Silverado Athletic Club

wants to stay in good physical condition, but doesn't want to spend an excessive amount of time doing it.

It targets the woman who wants to attend a one-hour aerobic class or work out on a piece of cardiovascular equipment, such as a stair machine, stationary bicycle or treadmill.

It targets the person who wants to pay for what she uses. Individuals on a limited budget do not want to pay a membership to a multi-service facility for activities they don't engage in.

Multi-service facilities charge their members for use of the entire club whether they use it or not.

By narrowing the club's services, the membership becomes more valuable to the consumer.

Ms. Estabrook says her main focus is on the members. "Yes, I only employ the very best aerobic instructors, my administrative staff is outstanding and we run a very upscale operation, but my club is only as good as the members' perception."

"They are a vital link to the success of Silverado. I try to treat each member as if they were my only member. It's paying off and I couldn't be happier."

Minuteman Realty reports a productive 1991

Century 21 Minuteman Realty has completed the most productive year of its six-year history, reports owners Jean Fitzgerald and Pamela Lebowitz. Located in the Musgrove Building at 2 Elm Square in downtown Andover, Century 21 Minuteman Realty does not seem to be suffering from the "soft" real estate market. "Each of the last 11 business quarters has been better than the corresponding quarter for the previous year," reports Ms. Fitzgerald. "Don't talk to us about a soft real estate market. Yes, business overall in New England is slower than it was in the mid '80s, but it is far from dead. Fortunately we are located in one of the finest towns north of Boston. Andover enjoys a superior reputation because of its excellent school system and its New England downtown with first-class shopping. Andover will always be in demand by discriminating buyers. We at Century 21 Minuteman expect a very busy 1992."

Much of the business contracted last year by Century 21 Minuteman was with relocating customers and clients referred to that office through the vast Century 21 referral network. Century 21, the largest real estate company in the world, has more than 7,000 offices worldwide - United States, Canada, Europe, Australia and Japan. "Massachusetts is still a top choice for relocating executives," said Ms. Fitzgerald. "When their houses are for sale in other parts of the country with a Century 21 office, they naturally look for a Century 21 office at the other end of their move."

Century 21 Minuteman, which boasts that it is a full-service real estate office offering in-house relocation, insurance, and mortgage, relocation, and construction design services, is proud to have been awarded the prestigious Improved Performance Award by Century 21 of New England "in recognition of superior performance, in a challenging market, with regard to increasing production and market share by providing outstanding customer service with a positive attitude throughout their office."

Century 21 Minuteman credits its success in 1991 in part to its Gold Key Marketing Program. The Gold Key Marketing Program is an exclusive Century 21 Minuteman sales promotion designed to make Gold Key Homes stand out in the market place and thereby get shown more often and sell faster. "The Gold Key Marketing Program worked so well for our sellers in 1991, we are going to continue running it in 1992," says Ms. Lebowitz. "Gold Key is the most exciting real estate marketing system ever introduced in the Andover area and 1991 proved that it really works."

It's tax season again: IRS advises to slow down while doing your return

Tax season is here again and the IRS would like to remind everyone to take their time preparing his or her returns this year.

Although the IRS wants you to file early, the people down at the Service Center would like you to take just a little more time for an error-free return.

"In a rush to get to the bottom line, many taxpayers speedread through the first six lines invariably making mistakes which affects the entire return," said Boston District Director Gerard R. Esposito.

The most frequent mistakes have to do with information on these first six lines - filing status, exemptions, standard deductions and the earned income credit," said Mr. Esposito.

The IRS can fix many errors without bothering the taxpayer, but not all. Sometimes there is not enough information on the return to know that the taxpayer made a mistake. "To correct some mistakes, the IRS has to write to the taxpayer to get missing information. This costs time and money. The taxpayer is inconvenienced and, of course, the refund is delayed until the mistake can be corrected, he said.

The IRS would like to offer the following advice for preparing your tax return. Slow down long enough to read the instructions for lines one through six very carefully before you begin to prepare your 1991 returns. These lines contain information about filing status and exemptions that establish who the taxpayer is and whether they have computed the correct tax.

"We have one convenient publication to answer questions about lines one through six - Publication 501, Exemptions, Standard Deduction, and Filing Information. It's available free from the IRS by calling toll-free 1-800-TAX-FORM (1-800-829-3676)," Mr. Esposito said.

HAVE YOU CONSIDERED THE TAX IMPLICATIONS OF YOUR RETIREMENT PLAN DISTRIBUTION?

Our brochure will walk you through your options. Remember, you only have 60 days to decide how to reinvest your money before the IRS takes its cut.

Unless you're a tax expert, chances are you never thought about the tax consequences of a "lump sum" distribution from your pension, profit-sharing, 401 (k) and stock option plan or your tax-sheltered annuity.

The fact is, there are several options available to you and if you're about to retire or change jobs, this may be a good time to start thinking about your options...and how you can continue to defer taxes until your later years. How you reinvest your money may determine how much you will keep for yourself.

There are various ways in which you can treat your distribution. Which option you choose is no doubt a complicated decision and you must carefully consider all your alternatives. And while we advise you to discuss the matter with your tax advisor, Andover Bank is happy to provide you with free valuable information.

Complete and return the attached coupon today and Andover Bank will mail you a free brochure that will tell you how to defer taxes on your distribution.

The Ryan Co. says 1991 was an investor's paradise

By Bill Ryan

Any way you look at it, 1991 was a great year to be a diversified investor in the financial markets. Certainly some investors who bought individual stocks and failed to diversify lost money, but 1991 was an investor's paradise.

There are two intertwining principles involved in investing: supply and demand, and alternatives. During most of the last 10 to 12 years interest rates in banks were in the 8 to 9 percent range, quite respectable risk-free returns. Real estate values were steadily climbing in New England as the high tech industry moved many people into this area. The financial markets also prospered with the Dow Jones Industrial Average climbing from about 800 in 1980 to almost 3,000 by the end of the decade. It seemed easy to make money in any type of investment or for that matter, even in banks.

Then came the "big chill" and the big change. When the real estate boom subsided in 1989 the poor lending practices of banks and savings banks became apparent. Savings banks that had long distinguished histories of lending for home mortgages and which had gone public in the mid '80s, suddenly found out that commercial lending was a different and more complex business than home mortgages. Many of the loans they had made to developers went bad and caused the rash of bank and S&L failures we see today. But the hidden and more dangerous effect of that is the tremendous increase in supply of properties for sale, mostly by troubled banks.

The compounding effect is the decrease in the size of the 25- to 35-year-old population group which makes up the potential buyers and renters of these properties. If the 35- to 45-year-olds were the "baby boomers," the younger generation could be called the "baby busters." The younger group is almost 25 percent smaller than the baby boomers. This can only result in continued lower demand for many types of real estate.

So we have an increase in the supply of real estate for sale and a decrease in the number of potential buyers. This classical economic divergence leads to lower real estate prices.

What about interest rates? Interest rates are either short term, intermediate or long term. Bank CD's are generally short term, i.e. under one to two years. A four-year car loan would be an example of an intermediate term loan, while a fixed rate mortgage typifies a long-term interest instrument.

The Federal Reserve Board regulates only short-term interest rates. If it wants to slow the economy down, it raises rates so items become more expensive to buy. In the current situation the Fed has lowered short-term interest rates dramatically in the past two years in order to try to get people to spend more money, hence, stimulating the economy. When the Fed lowers the interest rates, it charges the banks, banks in turn lower rates they pay on CDs and money market funds. In the current economic scenario of a weak economy we can expect the Fed to keep short-term rates low until we see a demonstrable pick up in the economy. Therefore CD rates are likely to stay in the 4 percent range for the foreseeable future, not very appealing as an investment.

That leaves only one major investment alternative for people to consider, the stock and bond markets. It is likely that over the intermediate to longer term, the stock market will continue to rise for several reasons:

1. Real estate will continue to suffer from excess supply and demographically imposed dwindling demand.

2. CD, Treasury and other short-term rates are likely to stay unacceptably low for most investors, and senior citizens in particular will reach out for more lucrative substitutes.

3. Long-term interest rates will eventually begin to rise, making long-term bonds a bad investment.

When you ask people why they fear investing, they most often cite fear of loss of principal. However, when you look at the facts about balanced mutual funds they just don't bear that out. In the past 15 years the average balanced mutual fund has lost principal in only one year. That was 1990 and the loss was only 1.62 percent. The average annual rate of return for balanced funds has been over 14 percent for that same 15 years. Mutual funds provide diversification which makes them a safer investment alternative than holding a few individual stocks.

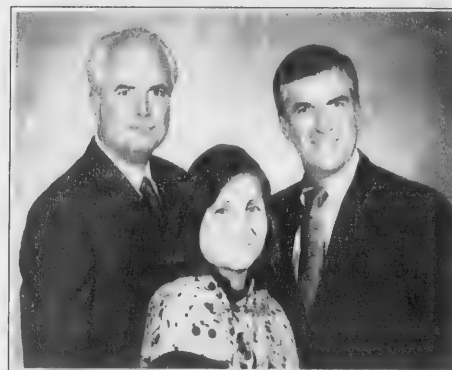

The Ryan Company specializes in balanced investment strategies for individuals, businesses and pension plans. Since the firm's inception the average rate of return for their balanced accounts has exceeded 17 percent. Considering the alternatives, that is not bad.

Northern Essex offers programs to help businesses

The Northern Essex Community College Center for Business & Industry will offer a series of programs designed to help area businesses provide skills and management training for employees.

Highlights of the series, which runs now throughout May, include six workshops in personnel administration designed for small business owners and those in the personnel field, a four-course certificate program in desktop publishing, and the CPE Institute in Accounting which provides professional development courses for Merrimack Valley accountants, according to Sandy Roberts, career and training specialist for the Center for Business & Industry.

"We are especially excited about a series of 14 workshops in Total Quality Management (TQM) which we are offering at the recession-proof price of $35 per course," said Ms. Roberts. "These workshops will provide CEOs, managers and supervisors with the skills they need to implement cost-saving, productivity-enhancing management systems in their firms and we instituted the low price to be sure that they are accessible to everyone." The TQM workshops are divided into four topics: Introduction to TQM, Employee Involvement, Planning for TQM Implementation and Managing for Continuous Improvement.

Program areas for courses offered this spring through the Center for Business & Industry are Total Quality Management, Professional Development, Municipal Management, Accounting, and Industrial Technologies, including Environmental Technology, Machining & Tooling Technology, and Desktop Publishing.

The programs are designed for manufacturing and service businesses of all sizes. They are offered during the daytime, in the evening and as part of the college's Weekend College. The Center for Business & Industry also provides plant-site training for companies in all of the mentioned areas.

Porsche introduces 968

Porsche Cars AG just announced the next evolution of Porsche design – the new model 968. Porsche's new sports car is the lowest priced in its line-up, yet it embodies the company's most recent technological achievements. The 968 is designed for high engine output, exceptional torque and a new concept of power transmission in conjunction with economy and exceptional environmental compatibility.

Prominent features include:

- A hand-built aluminum powerplant with the highest torque 3 litre atmospheric engine in the world and a top speed 156 mph. Each alloy engine is tested for at least 30 minutes being taken all the way to redline. It is then re-torqued before being placed in the car, ensuring proper break-in.

- A patented new Porsche Vario-Cam system uses resourceful engineering to burn fuel more precisely and thoroughly. Constantly varying and optimizing valve timing, it boosts throttle response, power and torque while helping to dramatically lower emissions.

- A breakthrough catalytic converter speeds airflow for more power while helping to decrease emissions 22 percent. A unique metal inner wall allows for thinner construction, reducing back-pressure and conducting heat more efficiently.

- Patented new headlamps use the principle of a bee's eyes; borrowing the concept of variable-point-focus from nature, more than 1,000 reflective facets are ground in a computer designed pattern to accomplish such a focus pattern and deliver each point of light to the proper position, increasing beam output to the sides and cutting reflected glare.

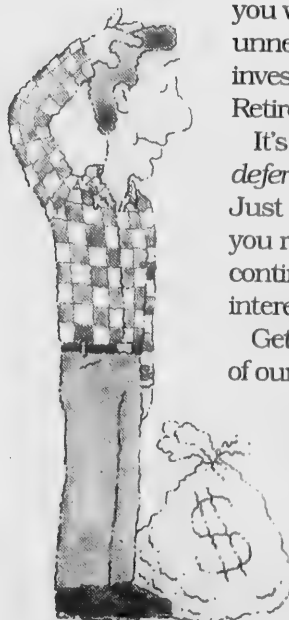

- The revolutionary Tiptronic transmission option – the world's first dual-function gearbox – lets the driver choose full automatic or clutchless manual shifting. As an automatic, the Tiptronic uses sensors to continuously measure engine, throttle and vehicle speed inputs, then chooses from five different shift "maps" to match your driving style. As a manual, the Tiptronic allows instantaneous, clutchless shifting with no let-up in power.

- Only Porsche makes both driver and passenger front airbags standard on every car. Based on racing experi-

Computers a la Carte: 'Tailor it to your needs'

Prior to opening Computers a la Carte in November, 1990, Eric Klaft worked out of a home office doing Macintosh and PC service and repair, sales and hard drive upgrades. On many weekends, he worked trade shows. "I was getting a steady stream of people in and out of the house, and particularly on Mondays, the phone would ring off the hook," he recalls.

When his wife saw the Old Library Building in Lawrence was for sale, the pair visited it, fell in love with it and bought it. The building, which for years served as the library for the city of Lawrence, is on the National Register of Historic Places.

Besides its location, Computers a la Carte is unique in other ways. The store has started the Merrimack Valley Users Group (which meets every Tuesday at 7 p.m.), and has set up an independent bulletin board system for it. Computers a la Carte also allows customers to do self-service upgrades on the premises (with help available from technicians).

Mr. Klaft hosts a local radio call-in show about computers every Tuesday from 1:30 to 2 p.m. on WCCM (800 AM).

The name Computers a la Carte has a special significance all its own. According to Mr. Klaft, the focus of the store is to allow customers to "have it their way." "Tailoring a system to your needs, rather than ours, seems to be very attractive to our customers," he says.

The Computers a la Carte sales staff tries to spend a minimum of 20 minutes or so with each walk-in customer in determining their specific needs, whether they are a corporate customer in the market for 10 terminals or an individual buying their first computer.

"Just the other day," says Mr. Klaft, "a fellow came in looking for a new computer, and as it turned out, we determined that he did not need a new system at all. Rather, he just needed to install a hard drive, and we did that for him, saving him about $800 in the process."

Computers a la Carte, even in this weak economy, has experienced unprecedented sales growth during the past year, and is planning on an aggressive expansion program during 1992. Mr. Klaft notes that he has already opened his first "a la Carte" branded outlet in the North Attleboro area and is planning on stores for the Metro West and Boston areas as well.

Computers a la Carte, even in this weak economy, has experienced unprecedented sales growth during the past year, and is planning on an aggressive expansion program during 1992.

Hunneman gathers presents and gives out blue ribbons

During the holidays, the Hunneman and Company/Coldwell Banker brokers in Andover held two Christmas parties to gather presents for the Toys for Tots program. More than 70 toys were donated to Greater Lawrence families.

Hunneman's European partner company, Iten Mobiliere, sponsored a contest based on service and sales during November and December. Qualifying brings an opportunity to win a free round-trip for two to Switzerland in the spring. In the Andover office, realtor-associates Sandy Bolway, Ellie Gallagher, Jack McCarthy, Beverly Nassar and Bobbie Rand have earned eligibility for the final drawing in February.

A new marketing program originally introduced on the West Coast has been established by the Andover office of Hunneman and Company/Coldwell Banker. Special listings are proposed and reviewed in a 130 point checklist to qualify for a "Blue Ribbon" designation. Each property must be in move-in condition and well priced, and regardless of price, be among the top 5 percent of properties on the market. Three properties in Andover have so far earned this designation.

W-2 forms should be furnished by Jan. 31

It is that time of year again, when employers should be providing form W-2, "Wage and Tax Statement," to their employees.

"Employers should furnish Form W-2s no later than Jan. 31," said Gerard R. Esposito, Boston IRS district director. "This would allow their employees to file their tax returns in February and quickly receive any federal tax refund due."

If an employee quits a job and asks for a Form W-2, the employer should give them the form within 30 days of the request or the final wage payment, whichever is later.

Generally, employers should keep any undeliverable employee copies of Form W-2 for at least four years. Anyone who does not receive their Form W-2 by Feb. 15 should call the IRS toll-free number, 1-800-829-1040.

Employers may be penalized $50 each time there is a failure to give a Form W-2. The maximum penalty is $100,000 per calendar year.

Commonwealth Motors continues sales climb

Charles Daher's Commonwealth Motors closed the 1991 calendar year and began 1992 well on its way to becoming New England's largest Chevrolet, Honda and Isuzu dealer. Inventory is arriving daily and there are always more than 300 vehicles to choose from. Commonwealth Motors prides itself on the fact that the "Best Price" is not the only reason why the dealership continues its rapid sales growth. It's the service after the sale that has friends telling friends that this dealership is really a nice place to buy a car before and after the sale.

Commonwealth Motors services almost every make and model vehicle and offers Saturday service, express service and free shuttle service if needed. Their technicians are factory certified and they maintain a half million dollar parts inventory. Commonwealth Motors also has a full-service body shop with free estimates and tow-ins available. "Everyone in our organization is here to serve the customer," says Charles Daher, president of Commonwealth Motors. Mr. Daher and his wife, Liz, residents of Andover, are readily available and anxious to hear your complaints, comments or suggestions so they can better serve you.

Charles Daher's Commonwealth Motors, 135 Marston St., Exit 45, Route 495, Lawrence, is open Monday through Thursday 7:30 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Saturday 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Sunday, noon to 5 p.m. Telephone, 687-3000.

Workplace stress causes workers to change jobs

According to a national survey, 14 percent of workers said they had quit or changed jobs during a recent year because of workplace stress. A stressful environment has many disadvantages - lower productivity, higher absenteeism, greater turnover and increased health insurance claims. Researchers have also established a link between high-stress jobs and increased risk of heart disease.

Workers are finding new pressures in the workplace. The recession has eroded job security and corporate downsizing has caused those who still have jobs to work even harder. Since 1982, about 4.5 million Americans at all levels have lost their jobs because of restructuring.

In some ways, employees today face forms of pressure different from those their parents and grandparents had. More people than ever are attempting to balance career and family demands.

"We have too much to do and too little time," said Tom Keene, director of activities therapy at Brookside Hospital in Nashua, N.H. As the amount of stress in the workplace increases, employers and employees are searching for ways to reduce job burnout and stress before it's too late.

Some companies are focusing on alternative work time as a solution to job stress. The "compressed work-week" allows workers to put in four 10-hour days and have three-day weekends. For many workers, the three-day weekend provides a relief valve for stress. On the other hand, there are some who believe the longer days increase stress.

"Flexible work options are a solution to job strain but are not practical for everyone, especially companies that need coverage five days a week," said Mr. Keene.

He offers the following tips to avoid stress in the workplace:

- Plan ahead;
- Set priorities;
- Set a schedule you can reasonably meet;
- Leave time for the unexpected;
- Don't procrastinate;
- Delegate work;
- Exercise.

Donate your unwanted cars

The National Kidney Foundation of Massachusetts has launched a search for unwanted cars.

Owners may donate any car, truck or motorcycle to the National Kidney Foundation of Mass. and deduct the fair market value of the vehicle on their income tax.

Call the National Kidney Foundation office at 1-800-542-4001 to have the vehicle picked up free of charge. All proceeds will go to the foundation's research programs.

According to Missy Margolis, chairman of the board of directors, "Everyone who participates benefits from this program. Not only does it provide funding for research, but also solves a dilemma for many people in this state who need to get rid of old cars. The prospect of a valuable tax deduction is attractive, but more importantly, this program allows for a convenient way to beautify a community and also supplies much-needed funding for scientific research."

Mercedes adds new model to its 300 Class

In early 1992 the new 400 E from Mercedes-Benz will be available. The engine of the 400 E is a light-alloy 4.2-liter multivalve V-8. At 5,700 rpm, this engine develops a vigorous 268 horsepower. The net torque that this engine has is 295 lb-ft at 3,900 rpm, which produces fine driveability throughout its power range.

The engine also features the LH fuel injection system. It uses an accurate "hot wire" air-mass sensor that virtually eliminates all obstruction if the fuel injection throttle-body for better flow and permits longer intake manifold runners for higher torque. The Mercedes-Benz variable intake-valve timing enhances clean burning and power production, particularly at lower engine speeds.

Due to its chassis and multilink rear suspension design, the 400 E exhibits taut handling. ABS anti-lock braking is standard.

The 400 E is also a conspicuously well-rounded and civilized touring sedan. Its highlights include an equalized high-performance 100-watt stereo sound system, the luxury of top-quality leather upholstery, electrically adjustable steering column and 10-way front seats with memory feature for the driver, an anti-theft system, headlamp washers and wipers, heated exterior mirrors, cruise control, retractable rear seat headrests and an electric sun-roof with pop-up feature.

Additionally, the 400 E makes numerous valuable options available.

Porsche introduces new sports car - the 968

ence, we know performance must be mated to equivalent safety. Today's dual airbags follow a long dedication to this philosophy, such as installing padded dashes 12 years before government tests prompted all manufacturers to do so.

• Racebred "total systems" concept means that any functional change or development is followed by systematic changes in every other related aspect of the car to maintain perfect balance. This means meticulous matching and tuning of brakes, springs, dampers, stabilizer bars, even tire tread pattern.

• Worldwide benchmark handling provided by transaxle design; placing the transmission over the rear axle results in near perfect 50-50 front to rear weight distribution. A rigid tube connects the transmission to the engine, contributing to body stiffness. The total layout provides a high polar moment of inertia, with handling so controllable it has been described as being "as neutral as a Swiss passport."

• Critical suspension components are cast in aluminum alloy for minimum weight, maximum strength and razor-sharp adjustment. The traditional Porsche attention to power-to-weight ratio, structural stiffness and extremely close tolerances provide the famed "feel" in which car and driver become one.

• The hand-finished paint requires 26 steps; white-gloved inspectors use special lights to find and correct virtually imperceptible flaws. The current color palate is also joined by availability of any color we have ever used, as well as the option of matching customer samples.

• Racing caliber components and materials provide inordinate durability for a road car, requiring scheduled maintenance only every 15,000 miles. Unlike most so-called "sports cars" that start with sedan platforms and attempt to fortify them, Porsche starts with racing designs and makes them practical for the street.

• Internal aerodynamics, another racing lesson, direct air through the body and chassis of the car from front to rear faster, while properly cooling the engine, brakes and transmission. Underbody details are meticulously sculpted and wind tunnel tested just like the upper body.

• Huge, internally vented disc brakes with ABS use aluminum alloy calipers to reduce unsprung masses; a stopping performance comparable to the famed

Porsche 968 Cabriolet

Porsche 962 race car.

• Two side zinc galvanized body panels are assembled with Porsche-developed ion beam welding tools, preventing corrosion and allowing 10-year body warranty. Corrosion prevention also aids longterm strength and integrity of the body and chassis.

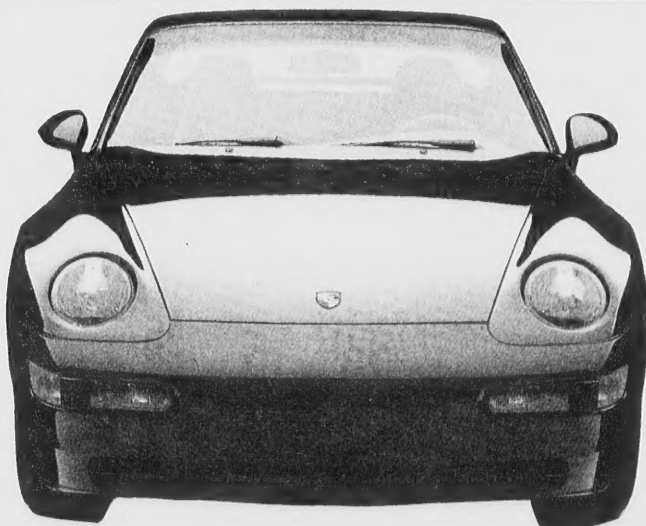

• With the first 6-speed manual gearbox in a production Porsche, the 968 enjoys increased legendary acceleration while maintaining top gear fuel economy. Closer ratios allowed by additional gear provide an ideal combination of city/highway performance capabilities.

The Real Estate Recovery

As I close the books on 1991, the realization sinks in that it was truly the turnaround year. Despite the gloom and doom, Hunneman and Company/Coldwell Banker's Andover office achieved some surprising records:

- 1) The highest dollar volume in our 62 year history,
- 2) The highest number of sales ever,
- 3) The largest number of in-house sales of all time,
- 4) The largest amount of relocation business in our history.

Clearly, something is happening and we're delighted. It bodes well for 1992.

Thank you Andover!
